EXTORTIONIST AND TROOPER SLAIN IN GRAVEYARD DUEL AT MONESSEN

Today

Mr. Morgan's Yacht.
Taboos Still Live.
Hard Kurdish Fighters.
Two Little Fighters.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TODAY J. Pierpont Morgan, the influential financier, starts across the ocean on his yacht, Corsair.

It's a bigger Corsair than that used by his father years ago. But, huge for a yacht, 343 feet long, the Corsair is, nevertheless, a small boat compared with modern giant passenger liners.

Even the richest man could hardly afford a ship as comfortable as the one that carries the cloak and suit buyers to the latest styles in Paris, and brings them home to copy them. That isn't exactly Socialism, but it's a good imitation.

CIVILIZED men laugh at "taboos" that keep a woman in the South Seas from touching a canoe, make it a crime to touch a man with your hands after you have touched a horse, and forbid the eating of certain animals, etc.

BUT the taboo is not dead, even in civilization. Horror seized the British House of Commons yesterday, when a Laborite member, Beckett, laid hands on the heavy mace that lies on the table in front of the speaker, and ran toward the door with it.

The mace symbolizes the power of the House of Commons. Beckett was suspended, 324 to 4.

KURDS from Persia, convinced that Kemal Pasha, Turkish dictator, flouts the will of Mohammed, undertake to correct him. Fifteen thousand of them, pouring in from Persia, made their headquarters on Mt. Ararat, burning, robbing and stealing, as proof of their fondness for Allah and the Prophet.

KEMAL killed about 15,000, nearly all of them. But the Kurds, desperately courageous as is usual with Mohammedans, say he will have to kill all of them to make them leave.

Their treatment of one Turkish aviator whom they shot down, immediately gouging out his eyes, proves their earnestness.

Kemal's bombing planes are searching the Mt. Ararat crevices where Kurds hide, a change from the day when the Ark landed peacefully.

ARMENIANS are doing what they can to help the Kurds kill the Turks. In the light of history you can hardly blame them, but they may regret it.

Kemal promises to wipe out their villages.

IN NEW YORK last night, two little boys, weighing, together, 268 pounds, were matched in a prize fight. Thirty-five thousand paid high prices for tickets to see them.

Not 4,000 would have paid half as much each to hear Einstein tell about his relativity theory.

IN ADDITION to a moral, the fight is a lesson for self-starving young women. Sammy Mandell, according to Dr. Walker, who examined him when he was weighed, was "dried to the last ounce," trying to keep down to 135 pounds for the fighting test.

He planned to gain strength, increase his blood supply, add three or four pounds to his weight, by eating and drinking before the fight started.

Consider the folly of young women who starve themselves deliberately month after month.

UNCLE SAM'S Farm Board asked farmers to cut down on wheat production.

Paul Reynaud, French minister of finance, wants all nations, especially the United States, to reduce production of all kinds, "rationalizing industry."

International co-operation to prevent overproduction is his remedy.

American industrialists, who support the "plant less wheat" program, don't like the idea of producing less steel, fewer automobiles, radio sets, etc.

TWENTY-TWO boats brought 1,050,000 pounds of mackerel into Boston yesterday. The fish sold for 4 cents a pound wholesale. Some day men will get rid of fish destroyers, sharks, small whales that devour millions of salmon, etc., as farmers have gotten rid of wolves that destroyed their sheep.

Then a small part of the ocean will be enough to feed the whole human race, unless middle men should decide to throw overboard rather than sell cheaply.

HAILSTONES six inches in diameter fell recently in Bulgaria, killed five, including two children on their way to school. Boats are missing in the Black Sea.

Imagine millions of small-sized old-fashioned cannon balls falling from the sky and you can imagine such a hailstorm.

Endearing Letters to Wife, Written With Invisible Ink, Offered in $100,000 Case

J. F. McManama, 70-year-old business man, of 5615 Woodmont street, today was named defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit.

It was filed by David N. Miller, of Aspinwall, who charges McManama wrote endearing notes to Mrs. Miller, addressing her as "darling," "honey" and "sweetheart."

The messages were written with invisible ink, Miller avers, and it was necessary to apply a hot iron to the ink to bring out the words.

ON BACKS OF LETTERS

He declares all the messages were on the reverse sides of letters purporting to come from a girl friend.

Attorney Jacob Shulgold is representing Miller.

Miller attached to the bill of complaint the letters which he charged McManama had written to Mrs. Miller.

One read:

"Nella dear, I was surprised to hear from you. How can you blame me? You have played so many tricks on me that there is no way to know when you mean anything. I know more about the little kinks in your nature than any living soul and yet I don't at all know you, you beautiful, delightful thing.

ALLISON WINS CUP MATCH

AUTEUIL, France, July 18.—(AP.)—Coming back after losing the first two sets and trailing at 1-5 in the fifth, Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas, scored a dramatic victory for the United States in the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis final today, defeating Georgio de Stefani, of Italy, 4-6, 7-9, 6-4, 8-6, 10-8.

Allison, a heavy favorite before the match, found himself battled to a standstil in the early stages of the match, but rallied with remarkable courage. Time after time he was on the verge of defeat at the hands of the ambidextrous Italian player, but he fought his way out of danger with a dazzling display of courage and skillful tennis.

For three hours the fortunes of war ebbed and flowed and when Allison, on the short end of a 1-5 count in the final set, began his sensational pull-up to even terms, the gallery rose en masse, shouting and applauding. In the long deuced set it was Allison finally who came through to give the United States the opening point in the series of five matches for the right to challenge the French.

NEW PINCHOT PARTY URGED AT ONCE

Unwise to Await Decision On Luzerne Vote, Aug. 19, Woodruff Tells Forester

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—(AP.)—Immediate pre-emption of an independent party title throughout the state is urged upon Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, according to official returns, by George W. Woodruff, former attorney general.

Woodruff is counsel for Pinchot in the post-primary proceedings which involve legality of the Luzerne County vote and the opening of ballot boxes in Philadelphia.

He has advised Pinchot, who is at his home in Milford, Pike County, not to defer actual organization of a new party until after the Supreme Court hears arguments in the Luzerne case, August 19. Attorneys for Francis Shunk Brown seek to have thrown out the primary vote cast in that upstate county, where Pinchot led by a margin of 26,000, and thereby to have Brown declared the gubernatorial nominee by a plurality of 6,000 in the rest of the state.

The third and latest date set for the Supreme Court hearing, August 19, is considered disadvantageous to Pinchot by the former attorney general.

Lottery on Wheels Raided by County

Acting Assistant Chief of County Detectives James S. McGinley gazed from his office window on the third floor of the Courthouse today. All were arrested and held for a hearing before Alderman George J. Anderson.

HOW STATE TROOPER CHARLES STEWART, 22, FATALLY SHOT AND ON HIS BACK KILLED JOHN SABO, 21, IN CEMETERY

POLICE TRAP DEATH NOTE WRITER

Attempt to Collect $10,000 At Cemetery Rendezvous Leads to Fatal Gun Fight

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

MONESSEN, July 18.—State Trooper Charles L. Stewart died from an assassin's bullet today because he didn't shoot first and ask questions afterward—but he got his man.

Wounded fatally by the first shot from the desperado's gun, Stewart, a 22-year-old member of Troop A, Greensburg, returned the fire and killed his assailant instantly. Stewart died half an hour later in Monongahela Hospital, where fellow officers rushed him in an automobile.

John Sabo, 21, of Monessen, the assassin, was attempting to collect $10,000 demanded by threat from W. F. Wright, a furniture dealer of this city. The shooting occurred in Grandview Cemetery where Sabo had instructed Wright to leave the money under threat of death.

NUMEROUS LETTERS

Wright had received numerous threatening letters during the past two weeks, culminating in a demand for the money, which the extortionist instructed was to be left at the entrance to the cemetery.

One of the notes threatened:

"At the cemetery gate at midnight, or death to you and yours."

State police were called, and a trap was set for the extortionist. Four troopers under Pvt. Walter Kunkle were sent from Greensburg last night. Stewart, enlisted in the state service only about a year from Reynoldsville, Pa., was stationed behind a clump of bushes near the cemetery gates.

Kunkle and James Knox, another trooper, took up their watch across the cemetery lane, also behind gates where they could keep an eye on the place designated for the money to be left.

TRAP SET

Pvt. Leon Gage was stationed in a field across the highway overlooking the entrance to the burial ground, and George Belin, the fifth member of the party, was assigned to a position in the

TAXIS CONTINUE BUS TRADE RAID

Although they were enjoined yesterday by the Public Service Commission, taxicab drivers today were still offering cut rates to passengers along the routes of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

The drivers were believed to be "making hay while the sun shines," as the saying goes, for the commission's formal order, while published in the newspapers, probably will not reach the Parmelee Transportation Company until late today or tomorrow. The complaint was made by the coach company, a Pittsburgh Railways subsidiary.

Coolidge Pleads Cause Of Harassed Presidents

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 18.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

It is human nature to blame some one else for our misfortunes. When the people are prosperous we hear little criticism of the President. Support for him comes from all sides when the country has little need of it. But if prosperity diminishes, thoughtless voices will be raised against him and his support will diminish when the country has most need of it. This is not only usually an unfair, but always a short-sighted and thoroughly suicidal policy. Under a parliamentary system the government could be changed. Ours is in for four years.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Confidence in the President is almost identical with confidence in the country and in ourselves. With public support he can do a great deal to save any situation. Moreover, if he cannot save it probably no one else can. It may be proper for the opposition party in the press and the Congress generally to oppose, but in the country at large all responsible people should seek to co-operate with the President in the discharge of his duties. He is the chief executive of all the nation. In time of conflict people are urged to support the President to win the war, at other times the same principle may require that he be supported to win the peace.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

City Provides Park Site For Hot-Dog Stand

Hot dog stands on city property are increasing. Harry Sable's two-ham caravansary, strategically and permanently located on the Washington boulevard, Highland Park, is the latest to attract public notice.

Harry started in business on the side of the hill where the cinders rolled down from Pennsylvania Railroad trains operating on the Brilliant cut-off. But he was dispossessed when the County Commissioners began excavating for the new Allegheny River boulevard and his establishment was moved across the Washington boulevard and set down in the center of an immense red-dog plaza, where parking space is provided for hundreds of cars of thirsty, weary, hungry motorists.

This once capacious hole-in-the-ground has been filled in and surrounding the Sable barbecue the city is preparing to beautify the greensward in the midst of a grove of splendid trees that border the boulevard. For more than a mile along the thoroughfare Sable has no competitor. A conservative appraiser, it is declared, would be justified in saying that the business would yield a fortune to its owner. Sable in his location at the junction of the two boulevards has secured a flying start in the hot-dog race.

SENATE FOES OF NAVY PACT SET FOR FINISH FIGHT

MOSES RAPS HOOVER ON SECRECY

Opposition Refuses to Limit Debate or Sanction Vote; Night Sessions to Be Held

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 18—While Senator George H. Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire, veteran irreconcilable today assailed the London naval treaty, the opposition sent word to administration leaders they would agree to no limitation of debate nor to any definite time for a final vote.

The President's spokesmen were greatly disappointed, but announced they would hold a session of the Senate tonight and convene a Saturday session at 10 a. m. This meant the treaty foes would have to continue their debate against the treaty day and night until exhausted, while administration senators sat silent.

Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, the administration floor leader, continued to withhold the cloture petition with 44 senators have signed. There are enough signatures to insure its adoption whenever the administration decides to impose gag rule on the Senate to shut off debate and force a vote on the treaty.

SAYS PEOPLE AFFRONTED

Senator Moses in his speech attacked President Hoover and his administration for seriously affronting the American people by refusing to make public the secret correspondence relating to the London pact.

Moses declared the President had acted without authority in denying the Senate the right to inspect all documents connected with the treaty. He also protested against the "deplorably unfortunate" manner of the President in trying to force immediate ratification of the treaty at a time when neither the nation nor the Senate understands this pact, he said.

The treaty, he averred, would mean naval competition within the limits fixed by the British cause "unwarranted expense" to American taxpayers and serve no beneficial purpose.

HIGH LIGHT OF HIS SPEECH

The New Hampshire Senator's attack on the President was the high light of his speech. After serving as one of the President's chief advisers in the 1928 campaign, Moses has been on friendly terms with Mr. Hoover ever since.

Touching on the President's refusal to turn over the treaty papers to the Senate, Moses said:

"The Executive, without right but with a power which was brusquely exercised, declined to co-operate with the Senate as the Constitution provides.

"The Executive, both in manner and matter, was deplorably unfortunate. The President, in describing the proper functions of the execution in his treaty-making function, declared he 'must not affront representatives of other nations.'"

Categorical denial was made by Secretary of State Stimson today of a published story to the effect Great Britain had protested to this government against the transmission to the Senate of the secret correspondence involved in the London treaty negotiations.

cemetery about 100 yards from the gate.

Just a few minutes after midnight, Wright drove up to the gate, left the automobile, and placed a package containing the $10,000 in the designated spot. Then he drove off.

The troopers waited. Nearly half an hour later, Kunkle said, he detected a movement in the bushes on Stewart's side of the cemetery lane.

"I thought it might be Stewart changing his position, but I wanted to make sure. I strained my eyes in the darkness in the direction of the movement and thought I caught it a second time a little closer to where I had left Stewart.

"Then I heard Stewart call out.

"'——state police.' I just caught part of it. 'where are you going?'

DUEL TO DEATH

"Then I heard a mumbled reply, and before I could get to my feet two shots rang out—a sharp 'ping' first and then the heavier report of a police gun.

"Knox and I pushed through the screen of bushes, but before we could see what was happening on the other side, three more shots rang out in quick succession—two pings and one more boom of the police gun.

"When we got into the open, there lay Stewart, face down, with his gun in his right hand, and the other man turned halfway around, sprawled near a grave."

One of the bullets from Sabo's gun, a small-caliber automatic, had entered the trooper's abdomen.

INQUIRY BEGUN

Three empty shells from his gun were found nearby. Stewart had fired twice. One bullet struck Sabo over the left eye and penetrated the brain. He died instantly.

Lieut. Thomas Martin, of Troop A, hurried from Greensburg to take charge of the investigation.

At the Sabo home, it was said, writing materials similar to those used in the threatening letters was found. The letters signed "Black Hand" demanded 100 hundred dollar bills be left at the cemetery gate under threat of death.

Sabo members of his family told police had been absent from home a great deal during the past few years. Much of the time he spent in Pittsburgh, he told them, they said. He was the eldest of four children, the other three being girls.

Kunkle felt the loss of his fellow officer keenly, having been with Private William Downey when he was slain during a labor riot at Acmetonia three years ago.

PRAISES DEAD TROOPER

HARRISBURG, July 18.—(INS.)—"I regret very much that Pvt. Stewart was killed while carrying out his duties. I was acquainted with him personally and knew of his courage. He died like the trooper he was."

This was the comment today of Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, on learning details of the shooting at Monessen early today which resulted fatally for Pvt. Charles Stewart, of Troop A, Pennsylvania state police.

BRITISH REJECT BRIAND PLAN

LONDON, July 18.—(AP.)—Farreaching objections to Aristide Briand's scheme of a European federal union, often referred to as the United States of Europe, were advanced in the British reply which was made public last night.

The British government joined issue with the French scheme chiefly in connection with the methods proposed by the French government for the realization of the Pan-European idea.

The British reply was stated to be merely of a preliminary and tentative character, for the Briand scheme demands "careful, prolonged consideration" and the British government feels it its duty to undertake that consideration in consultation with the dominions.

SHANGHAI, July 18.—(AP.)—Northern alliance rebels today claimed sweeping victories over government troops along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway in Eastern Honan and asserted their forces had occupied Kweiteh, a strategic city. The rebels said they were pushing on toward Tangshan, Kiangsu province.

150 AMERICANS SAFE IN EGYPT

None of the 150 Americans connected with the American mission in Egypt was affected by the week's rioting in Alexandria. This information was wired today to the Sun-Telegraph by Dr. Mills J. Taylor, of the United Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, Philadelphia. Many of the members of the mission are from this district.

LONDON, July 18.—(INS.)—King Fuad, of Egypt, faced a crisis today with the double task of holding a balking ministry and controlling an unruly population.

The cabinet, headed by Sidky Pasha, threatened to resign after further demonstrations occurred against the government at Alexandria. Arabs stormed through the streets. Police fired before the demonstrators dispersed with one of their number injured.

The British battleships Princess Elizabeth and Ramillies arrived at Alexandria today and their appearance was felt to have a calming effect upon the populace.

WOMAN MURDER FARM SUSPECT FLEES POLICE

Belle Gunness, Alleged to Have Killed Twenty Men, Reported Lately in South

GULFPORT, Miss., July 18.—(AP.)—The sheriff's office here today said that a woman, believed to be Mrs. Belle Gunness, charged with operating a murder farm near LaPorte, Ind., over 20 years ago, had recently left her home on Wolf River and gone out of the state.

At the request of Indiana authorities the sheriff of Harrison County attempted to arrest the woman early today but found her gone. The suspect had been known in this section under another name.

SECRECY FAILS

Sheriffs of Hinds and Harrison counties attempted to keep the news of the suspect quiet after it had leaked out through Indiana authorities mistaking a telegraphic inquiry to learn if Belle Gunness was wanted to mean that she already had been arrested.

The sheriffs have refused to say what information led them to believe the suspect was the woman wanted on charges of luring 15 or 20 men to their deaths by marrying them and then giving them poison in order to collect their insurance.

JACKSON, Miss., July 18.—(AP.)—Sheriff Tom Moore of Hinds County said today that he did not know the identity of a man who came to his office with a story concerning the whereabouts of Belle Gunness, wanted in Indiana on charges of committing 15 murders. Telling of the visit, Moore said:

"The man came into my office yesterday and said he had known the woman since he was 16 years old and that he knew her whereabouts. He wanted me to get her.

INSISTED ON IDENTITY

"I did not get his name, but he insisted the woman was Belle Guinness and that she was near Gulfport.

"I had planned to slip down there with him and arrest her, but after the news got to the papers, it was necessary to telephone the sheriff of Harrison County and have him seek her.

"He telephoned early this morning that the woman believed to be Mrs. Gunness had left the state June 15, Presumably for Indiana."

Sheriff Moore said the man told him that the woman was using another name, that she was well known on the gulf coast, a political factor and well thought of there.

Later the prisoner was removed to St. Francis Hospital for observation.

MERGER JUDGE HALTS TRIAL TO WEIGH POINT

Date Covered by Steel Suit Testimony on Grace Salary May Prove Turning Point

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 18.—(AP.)—Judge David G. Jenkins today adjourned trial of the suit to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation until Monday to consider what he said may be a "vital and possible turning point in the lawsuit."

The point Judge Jenkins will decide is the date or period which can be covered by testimony as to the salary and other income Eugene G. Grace received as president of Bethlehem.

DATE QUESTION

Yesterday the judge ruled the date should be April 30, 1930, when the merger would have become effective had it not been delayed by injunction suits.

Attorney F. H. Wood, of defense counsel, caused the judge's new deliberation by informing the court today that the merger contract had been extended to July 31, pending outcome of the suit.

Today's session of the trial began with attorneys for the merger opposition continuing their efforts to learn how much money Grace was earning at the time the merger deal was submitted to the Sheet and Tube stockholders.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, is the leading figure in the opposition group.

FRAUD HINTED

The Eaton attorneys were balked by the court yesterday in their attempt to get a direct answer from Grace, and today were trying to get his 1929 compensation into evidence by establishing the percentage of Bethlehem profits which might have been paid to him.

Grace has admitted a regular salary of $12,000 and a bonus, but he refused to tell the amount of the bonus. The $12,000 salary is $1,588,000 short of the figure alleged by the Eaton forces, who contend that concealment of his compensation from Youngstown Company stockholders before they ratified the merger on April 8, this year, constituted fraud.

As a result of McManama's attentions, the husband charged, his wife left him and their 14-month-old child the latter part of May, 1930. He doesn't know her whereabouts now, he said.

When the suit was filed before Judge Samuel H. Gardner, he granted a $500 capias bail against McManama.

DENIES LETTERS

McManama, when notified of the suit denied everything. He said:

"It's an attempt to get money from me."

He denied writing the letters and declared that, although he had known Mrs. Miller since she was a small girl, he had not seen her for a year. He added:

"I don't see why Miller wants to pick on me. If I saw him today, I wouldn't know him from Adam."

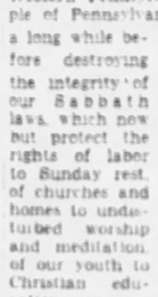
Blue Law

What Outstanding People Think Of It

Each day for awhile the Sun-Telegraph asks opinions of leading citizens on the state's Blue Law. A group of opinions is presented below:

MRS. W. EDGAR REED, deputy commissioner of Girl Scouts of Allegheny County—I certainly believe that the Blue Law should be repealed or modified to such an extent that the people may be allowed every opportunity for recreation consonant with church attendance on Sunday. They should be permitted by law to indulge in every form of wholesome sport and amusement on the one day when they may relax from their week's labor. The poor will largely benefit from any change in the law and this is the element of our people given such meager opportunity for recreation at best and the element most needful of recreation. People of wealth do not feel the restrictions of the Blue Law. Our youth of today will be the chief beneficiaries of a change in the regulations their generation has outgrown. I believe our boys and girls will profit in a moral and religious sense, as well as physically and mentally, by legal sanction of sports and amusements on Sunday, and they will have a greater respect for law. I favor anything that will make our boys and girls happier, and in making them happier improve their bodies and minds.



Mrs. Reed.

THE REV. ROBERT M. BLACKWOOD, general secretary of the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania—The people of Pennsylvania will hesitate a long while before destroying the integrity of our Sabbath laws, which now but protect the rights of labor to Sunday rest, of churches and homes to undisturbed worship and meditation, of our youth to Christian education, or our communities to their Sabbath quiet and relaxation, and of the state to physical health and moral uplift. Interpreted and upheld by a long line of court decisions, this law as now written has been accepted by the fine sentiment of our people and statesmen as sufficiently flexible to meet the changing conditions of modern life, and as one of the best civil Sabbath laws ever enacted. The steady refusal of our legislators to repeal or modify this law makes Pennsylvania the Gibraltar of the Sabbath in the United States. One hundred anti-Sabbath bills have gone down to defeat in the Pennsylvania Legislature the last 30 years. Our rural districts will keep on killing them. If Pittsburgh wants God's blessing, without which there can be no prosperity, we had better defeat drives for the commercialization and public secularization of the Lord's Day.

Dr. Blackwood.

FRANK E. SHAUGHNESSY, president of the Homewood-Brushton Board of Trade and the Homewood Realty Company—The Blue Law fits in with modern life just as the original telephone and the hoop skirts would. The Blue Law's prohibitions did not disturb the life of the community years ago. I remember when it required all day to visit a relative in another part of the city. There was little to do then but worship on Sunday. Modern transportation alone has nullified the century-old law. I believe it has also changed the point of view of its former advocates. In the rural districts, where the law was most staunchly supported, the residents are brought close to everything by the automobile. They have their filling stations and barbecues and do a rushing business on Sunday. The blind obedience is melting. The office and factory workers are restless for a change. A change must come and the dwindling ranks of the opposition can merely delay it.

F. E. Shaughnessy.

MRS. GEORGE P. BASSETT, JR., vice president of the Association for Modification of the Blue Law of 1794—The timeworn impositions of the Blue Law are a misfortune to Pittsburgh. The people of the city suffer from them in many respects. I believe baseball and other sports should be permitted, as is golf, and that the people should be allowed to attend concerts and motion picture shows on Sunday. The old law is a drawback to the community and tempering its severity will not harm the morals or religious views of the people. In Cleveland and New York and the other large cities of the country where liberal Sunday laws prevail there is no lessening of the moral quality of the inhabitants.

Mrs. Bassett.

Buddy to Scatter Graham's Ashes Along Air Route

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(Universal.)—With the drone of an airplane motor as his goodby, the ashes of Maury Graham will be given to the wide ways of the air.

Saturday at dusk, over the same high road of the sky where Graham flew to his death in the blackness of a January storm, Fred Kelly will take out the night air mail.

Out there, in the cool, quiet dark, over the silent mountains, his friend will give Maurice Graham back to the clean windy heights that he loved.

With the long search ended, Maurice Graham's body was carried back to Cedar City, Utah, today, from the lonely canyon in the mountains, where, six months ago, he died. Jimmy James and Fred Kelly flew him home.

It was near a little mountain stream that Maj. Richard McDonald and his five men found Graham, six miles from his wrecked plane. He was probably hurt, they believe; dazed and weary. He had sat down to rest and eat—there was a can of tomatoes beside him and his knife was in his left hand.

He had raised his revolver—fired a few shots in a last desperate hope that someone would hear—and his hand, still holding the gun, had fallen back behind his head.

His papers were in his pockets. He had written nothing since that last terse entry in the log in his wrecked plane—"Arrived, no destination"—written just before he snapped the lock on the mail compartment and started out through the snow.

Prince's Bride to Get Villa Prepared for Mrs. Corey

SAN REMO, Italy, July 18.—(Universal.)—Prince Luis de Bourbon, who last year created a sensation by withdrawing from his intended marriage with Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey, former actress and musical comedy star, and divorced wife of William Ellis Corey, Pittsburgh millionaire, will marry the 72-year-old Princess De Broglie in Saint Anna's Church, here, Saturday.

The couple will leave immediately after the ceremony for the prince's villa at Bordighera, which he purchased last year for his honeymoon with Mrs. Corey.

It was said at the time of the broken marriage contract last year that Prince Luis withdrew because the cash settlement was not large enough.

SENATE QUIZ ON VOTE IS RECESSED

Pennsylvania Fund Inquiry To Open First Week in August, Senator Nye Says

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP.)—With the Senate's inquiry into her campaign funds recessed, Ruth Hannna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, today began an investigation of the ransacking of her private correspondence.

Shortly before Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Senate's Campaign Funds Committee, temporarily halted the inquiry yesterday, the Illinois Congresswoman issued a statement saying the office of her Rock River farm estate at Byron, Ill., had been broken into Wednesday night and her letter file ransacked.

While she refused to say the outrage had any connection with the inquiry, Mrs. McCormick pointed out that the raiders were not in search of money or other loot because they did not break into the safe, contenting themselves with an examination of correspondence, she said.

EMPLOYS DETECTIVES

"I have no clue to the perpetrators, but I have employed detectives."

Senator Nye said he hoped the ransackers would be caught and punished.

Nye's decision to recess the inquiry was made after a subpena was issued for Mr. Mabel Reinecke, election commissioner and former internal revenue collector, who was described by the senator as a "key witness" whose name "dotted the inquiry." She is away on a vacation.

QUIZ HERE IN AUGUST

Senator Nye said the inquiry into Pennsylvania campaigns would begin the first week in August and that he did not anticipate returning to Chicago until after the Keystone State primary had been scrutinized.

In addition to the $252,500 of her own money expended and the $67,214 spent by volunteer groups, all of which had been reported by Mrs. McCormick, the inquiry disclosed that an unreported $7,207 had been spent by W. D. Alexander, a Bloomington (Ill.) lumber man. Another $10,000 contribution made by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, was not reported by the Illinois congresswoman because, as she explained, it was not used in the primary and had been kept for the fall campaign.

AREAS FROM 4 COUNTIES INCLUDED

Metropolitan District Totals To Be Issued in 1931; Exceptional Growth Noted

Pittsburgh's metropolitan district population for 1930 will exceed 1,800,000, according to indications made by local supervisors in their returns to the Bureau of the Census in Washington.

The figures for the metropolitan area will be issued late in 1931 following a special compilation of the statistics from Allegheny, Washington, Beaver and Westmoreland counties. Portions of these four counties are embraced in territory prescribed by census authorities at Washington in circumscribing the metropolitan boundary.

BIG INCREASE

Exceptional growth during the last decade in several industrial communities just outside the limits of Allegheny County will give Metropolitan Pittsburgh a big increase. Chief among these is Aliquippa with 27,122 and Ambridge with 20,201 inhabitants in Beaver County, and the boroughs of New Kensington, Arnold and Parnassus in Westmoreland County. The borough of Finleyville and Union Township in Washington County also will be included in this populous Pittsburgh area.

Census officials emphasize that there is no relation between Metropolitan Pittsburgh as represented in the population statistics along with that of the other leading cities and the municipal district included in the proposed Metropolitan plan.

James K. Routley, supervisor for the Thirteenth district, pointed out that officials in Washington will compile automatically figures for the metropolitan areas of all large centers of population, and Pittsburgh will be included.

BOUNDARY LINES IGNORED

This said Routley is a part of the federal service and is done independently of any action by local authorities.

Municipal corporations and civic organizations he pointed out, have nothing to do with the creation of metropolitan boundaries for census compilations.

Frequently city metropolitan territory is inter-state, examples being found in Cincinnati where territory on both sides of the Ohio River in Ohio and Kentucky are included, and in Philadelphia where Camden and its suburbs in New Jersey are embraced the Quaker City metropolitan district.

WOMAN DRIVER SUES TOWERS

Attorney Esther Israel Katten today sued Herman Gumto Jr., doing business as the Gumto and Anderson garage, for $10,000 damages.

Miss Katten charged that at 2:30 o'clock one July morning employes of the garage, which is a city towing garage, tried to tow her car away from outside her home in Hastings street because it was unlighted.

They damaged the car by dropping a crane through the roof and caused her to become ill from the cold, she contends.

Miss Katten told reporters that the car had not been tagged when she found the employes trying to remove it, but that later a policeman arrived and supplied one.

CHINESE HOLD MISSIONARIES

PEKIN, July 18.—(INS.)—Thirty-six Americans and several British missionaries were captured by rebels and are being held in the upper regions of the Min River, it became known here today.

The American and British consuls immediately organized a miniature rescue expedition and left Foochow this morning on a launch flying the American and British colors. They hope not only to secure the release of the latest captives, but also to arrange for the return of two British women missionaries now being held for a ransom of 100,000 Chinese dollars by Communist bandits.

Several days ago the British government evacuated all British residents it could reach and Americans were urged to leave the bandit and rebel-infested territory as soon as possible. It is believed the raiders caught the large party while the latter was on its way here to escape further molestation.

DEFEAT MARKS REICHSTAG END

BERLIN, July 18.—(AP.)—Germany's political crisis of the past few days came to a dramatic climax today with the dissolution of the Reichstag, necessitating new elections not later than September 14 of this year.

Until the election, the Bruening cabinet, which defied the Reichstag, will continue in office, ruling under the emergency dictatorial powers conferred by the German constitution and authorized by President Von Hindenburg.

Today's smashing of the deadlock between the Reichstag and ministry followed a vote against the government on its financial decrees and was accompanied by disorderly scenes in the Reichstag.

WHALEN BARES REDS' RECORDS

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—Shortly after a subpena had been issued for him, former Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen appeared today as a witness before the House Committee investigating Communist activities in the United States.

He apologized for his late arrival saying he had been misinformed as to when he was to appear.

Whalen said that when he was police commissioner a survey of the Communist situation here was begun by police at the request of the Labor Department in Washington.

More than 2,000 questionnaires were sent to suspected Communists, 500 failing to answer them.

Whalen then began a discussion of the criminal records of strike leaders who participated in Communist walkouts in New York during the past four years. He said that practically all of the Communist strike leaders had criminal records.

ROTARIANS TOLD DRY LAW FAILS

AMESBURY, Mass., July 18.—(AP.)—Representative A. Piatt Andrew (Rep., of Massachusetts) believes some way other than the Eighteenth Amendment should be sought to deal with the problem of prohibition.

His concern, he said in an address at a joint meeting of Rotary clubs here, is the amendment as it is, not as it might have been had it been possible to carry it out as many in the beginning had hoped, adding:

"The Eighteenth Amendment has brought some very important benefits, but it has undermined the people's regard for the basic charter of our institutions. It has impaired their respect for law and government. It is corrupting their standards of straightforward and honest living. It bears upon the poor but not the rich."

VOLSTEAD AIMS AT HOME BREW

ST. PAUL, July 18.—(AP.)—A concerted drive on shops and stores that sell the specific kind of malt used for the manufacture of "home brew" will be made by prohibition forces in the Northwest district, it was indicated today by Andrew J. Volstead, legal adviser of the district, and father of the prohibition enforcement act.

The corner grocery store which sells this malt is likewise to come under the scrutiny of dry forces, Volstead said.

"Malt sold in grocery stores—that specific kind used for making beer—is no different than the malt sold in regular malt stores," said Mr. Volstead. "Its sale is illegal whether in the neighborhood grocery or the downtown malt shop."

Agha, the Turk, Only 156, Talks of Women, War

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 18.—(AP.)—Zaro Agha who says he is 165 years old and that the first 100 years were the easiest, landed here from Turkey today to get a set of false teeth and, for a consideration, to let American scientists have a look at him.

Yellow and wrinkled, with hawk-like nose, bristling gray mustache, and curious eyes, weirdly alive in deep-sunken sockets, Zaro Agha sat in the sun on the deck of the steamer Sinaia and talked of wars and women.

Zaro Agha has been married 12 times and had 36 children, all of whom are dead save one daughter, born when he was 96. He has lost track of grandchildren, great grandchildren and great-great grandchildren.

For 112 years, until he was 135, Agha worked as a porter. His last job was in a piano factory, moving pianos, and in between times he was always going to war, and as he told it.

"I was in the artillery and carried cannons on my shoulders."

Agha denied he had divorced his eleventh wife to marry the present one, who is 66. Indignantly, he said:

"Me? I never divorced any of my wives," he grunted. "I get along with them all, very nice, and they all died.

"Now women—I always am interested in them. I like them brunette best and plump."

Thirsty? Then Keep Your Taxes Paid, Or Else—

Turn off the water—in comes the water tax.

That was the move made yesterday when City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley ordered shut-off of water of those who owed delinquent taxes.

The supply at a four-story brick building at Market street and Third avenue occupied by Sable's food market, was the first stopped.

Clerks said a check for water rent had been sent five days ago. Investigation revealed that no check for the 1927 delinquent taxes had been received, Schooley said.

Just before closing time a representative of Francis E. McGillick, owner of the building, appeared at Schooley's office with funds for the delinquent rent, a $49 interest fee, plus a $4 penalty.

Then the water was turned on again.

At the second stop, a restaurant and hotel at 10 and 12 Smithfield street, effort was made to turn off the water, but those on hand discovered the pipe blocked with dirt and stone. An hour's work was needed and the job was postponed until today.

Another unexpected job materialized at Chaplin-Fulton Manufacturing Company. A bill of $17 was listed in the treasurer's office but a large main in the center of the street, for which no tools were available, delayed the work. A house at 437 Third avenue, listed as owned by Eliza Jeha, was closed to water, despite objections of the owner of a fruit stand there.

Expatriated U. S. Women See Hope for Return

PARIS, July 18 (AP)—Thousands of American-born women married to foreigners and living abroad have joyfully hailed the news from Washington that the Cable act has been so amended that they will be able without much difficulty to regain their American citizenship.

There is a long list of American-born women married to foreigners who are anxious to have back the nationality of their birth, but who feel unable to return to the United States every few years to re-establish their passports as was necessary under the 1922 Cable bill.

There are several titled names on the list, according to the Countess of Lauzanne de Vourousel, formerly Ethel Macomber, a Vassar alumna.

The countess said:

"To give out the names of women who have manifested their interest in re-establishing their American citizenship would be a breach of faith since undoubtedly many women communicated with the Committee for Women's Nationality Rights without the knowledge of their husbands."

The countess is vice chairman of the committee.

goes on parade...

FROM New York to Shanghai, from Boston to Berlin, east and west, north and south, wherever cities are, wherever people live, steel is used.

In our homes, from the small nails used in construction, to the cooking ranges, modern refrigerators, frying pans, knives, and countless others, there is evidence of steel almost at every turn. For transportation, steel helps us on our way through steel constructed automobiles, street cars, and trains. The buildings in which we work, the stores in which we shop, and the theatres are all constructed of steel. Desks, chairs, file cases, electric fans, typewriters, and elevators, are only some of the many daily steel contacts of our business life.

Today, steel products "parade before us" more actually than ever before. Modern manufacturing methods aided by the general utilization of Electric Energy, has stepped up steel production. Finished products are completed with greater perfection, greater speed, and under safer working conditions. It is the happy combination of Steel for Strength and Electricity for Power that has enabled our cities to grow taller and our civilization to be widespread. For everything durable and big, this strongest of all metals from the greatest of all industries is our tool of progress.

The Duquesne Light Company feels proud of its relation to this gigantic industry . . . . . in making the Electric Energy that helps to make the steel that makes our cities and contributes so much to life in general. Fifty years of service has been the history of this utility in providing Electric Power for the Greater Pittsburgh District . . . . fifty years of constant effort in endeavoring to render adequate and dependable electric service, which today is offered at rates the lowest in the country.

THE services of our engineers are available to the steel industry for advice and information concerning any power problems and in planning for the most efficient utilization of electric energy. Call GRant 4300 . . . Line 233

JONES DEFENDS FEDERAL COSTS

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Senator Jones, of Washington, pointed to the growth in 50 years of the government's expenditures from $300,000,000 to $4,800,000,000, not as an evidence of extravagance, but as an indication of the growth, development and wealth of the country.

Speaking in the National Radio Forum, sponsored by the Washington Star and the Columbia Broadcasting Company, the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee said the increase in governmental expenditures had been normal, indicative of the expanding activities and unexampled growth of the country.

He traced the growth of governmental activities and said that of the $4,800,000,000 appropriated for this fiscal year, 70 per cent was deemed necessary to meet the needs of defense and care for the results of war.

Then Dale learns that Mrs. Robertson has been brutally murdered.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

Robin Dale waited to make no explanations. He told Raymond and Reilly to come along. Within a few moments they were in a taxi going across town to Madison avenue.

"I want you two to stick with me. I'll take the responsibility. There's a big story in this thing and the important work is just begun. There's a monster loose [illegible] one way to corner him. Philip Robertson's the only person left in the affair and he's a married man. I want him tailed without him or the police knowing it. That's the only chance [illegible]

Dale then went on to explain the highlights of the case and told Raymond and Reilly to arrange shifts to suit themselves. They both knew Robertson from pictures which had been published in the Daily Journal.

Dale was prepared for almost the tragic sight when he entered the apartment on Madison avenue. Captain Blake and Jarvin were already there. Skelly, the detective who had been on guard, was in the room. Besides them, there was [illegible] Philip Robertson. His face was tear-stained although he seemed to have gotten a hold on himself.

Capt. Blake went into an adjoining room with Dale.

"Why didn't you tell me sooner, Dale?" Fifteen minutes earlier we would have saved her life. It was almost as horrible as the other one. Your call came about 10:30. I got Skelly and he came right upstairs and found her dead. Heavy fireplace irons this time and no fingerprints. Doc came over with me and said she was dead [illegible] more than half an hour [illegible] 20 at the outside. What do you, allow, Dale?

"What I've discovered won't do any good now, Captain Sullivan. I'll tell you that tonight [illegible] any chance to get the criminal if anyone else even knew were told. You couldn't attest the guard's one because there isn't a chance to prove anything. I want to carry on for 24 hours then I'll tell you what prompted my call this morning and you'll see it."

"I guess I'll have to go that way," said Capt. Blake in a sharp, almost disagreeable tone.

A few minutes later Philip Robertson was called in for questioning. He was very close to a breakdown. He remembered distinctly [illegible] of the murder. He had left the house shortly before nine thirty and walked to Fifth avenue and Forty-third street, where the offices of the solicitors were located. [illegible] with half an hour's [illegible] through which the estate of his uncle was finally turned over to him. There was an appointment made for four that afternoon at the bank, purposely after banking hours, at which time all the cash in the estate was to be given to his name. He had made arrangements to draw it as he and Mrs. Robertson planned to leave New York that very day, going by boat to Quebec.

Leaving the solicitors' office he had walked to Madison avenue, going through Forty-third for the sailing agent was in that vicinity. He thought he had better outfit Mrs. Robertson again about various purchases he had to make and walked through Madison avenue to his home. He arrived shortly after ten thirty and found the detective (Skelly) in the room and his wife dead. He broke down at the end.

When Capt. Blake questioned Skelly, the detective confirmed Robertson's statement. Skelly had seen him depart before 9:30 and return after the discovery of the murder.

"Anybody else go in and out of the house between 10 and 10:15, Skelly?" asked Blake.

"I was holding the phone then, Capt. Blake, in the store right next to the apartment waiting for you."

"Waiting for me?"

"Sure, it was about 10 after 10 when the storekeeper called me to the phone. The operator told me to hold on, you wanted me. About five minutes later the operator said never mind you'd call me later."

"I never called you at that time! That's when the murderer got in and out of the house!"

"Then at 10:30 I got another call and come right up here and found the body. I was trying to telephone the office and found the wire was out. Just then Mr. Robertson comes in and, hoping to quiet him down a bit and not leave the place myself, I asked him to find a telephone. In a few minutes he comes up, worse than ever."

It was planned perfectly, Captain . . . too damned perfectly," Dale remarked.

They went into the living room again. They had scarcely entered when a messenger arrived with an envelope for Robertson. It turned out to be the steamship tickets for that evening's sailing made out to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Robertson. He took them and choked back a sob as he gazed at the tickets.

"I wonder if I might take these back to the sailing office, sir," Robertson said brokenly to Blake, "if you could spare one of your men to accompany me. I fear even to go on the streets alone."

Captain Blake motioned Jarvin to go along.

Is Your Daughter Well and Strong?

There are three trying periods in a woman's life, when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Thousands testify to its worth.

Daughter of Mrs. F. Butcher, R. No. 2, Gridley, Kansas

"My thirteen year old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired." —Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

Daughter of Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her, off and on. Then a friend told us about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls. I really think the Compound helped her more than all the other medicine I gave her."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi.

Daughter of Mrs. M. Milano, 1408 Park Ave., New York, New York

"My seventeen year old daughter Fannie was rundown, weak and nervous. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she has gained in weight and strength. She eats and sleeps well. She is a packer and she is able to go to work every day. We recommend the medicine to other mothers and daughters." —Mrs. M. Milano.

Producers Going Ahead With Musical Films Despite Reverse

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 18.

Undaunted by the reverse action toward musical pictures First International and Warners are continuing the production of operettas, or musicals as the studios would have them called these days.

From the studio program announcements [illegible] other studios there are [illegible] operettas mentioned. MGM has Laurence Tibbett and Grace Moore to [illegible] after; RKO Everett Marshall; Universal, John Boles and many of the other companies have singing stars to assign. So it appears that musical comedies are the ones to be looked over during the coming season.

AN OLD HABIT

Arthur Caesar, the 200-pound scenarist and polo player, is worried over his recent purchase of four polo ponies.

"They're all great polo horses," explains Arthur, "except when they see a wagon. Then they immediately try to back into the shafts."

A train and airplane trip to Havana is being made by Tay Garnett and his cameraman for two or three scenes for his last picture, "Her Man." These shots will be brought back to Hollywood where Helen Twelvetrees and Philip Holmes will be double exposed into them, the finished results showing the two players actually walking down the thoroughfares of the Cuban city.

Following on the heels of the Duncan-Lease tilt, a short but effective engagement of fisticuffs occurred outside the Fox casting office. The story goes that a certain agent was attempting to hold up the salary of one of his clients because of commissions due him. The client, a six foot character actress, approached the studio for her pay check, and spied the agent sitting in his auto. With great gusto she pulled him out of the car and punched him on the chin. ELSIE'S CURTAIN SPEECH

Elsie Ferguson

"You don't know how glad I am that this is all over," she said across the footlights.

"Why?" asked someone in the audience.

"It's been a terrific strain rehearsing three weeks and not knowing who the cast would be," she continued. "I've hardly known what I've been doing all night. It's much different in pictures though. You do your little scene and forget it."

Many of Hollywood's celebrities heard the speech. During intermission I saw several producers among them Harry Rapf and Irving Thalberg, Ann Harding and her husband, Harry Bannister, Gary Cooper and Lupe Velez, Robert Ames and many others also were in the audiences.

After a long absence Johnny Hines is returning to the screen. The actor has been signed by Al Christie to make a series of comedies. This marks the second talent that Christie has secured within as many days, Charlotte Greenwood having signed yesterday.

Special material will be written for Hines in which the comedian probably will take an active hand himself.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Poor Lita . . . Gussie Apfel in 1910 when the Gus Edwardses picked her up out of Union Hill . . . And put her in the Song Revue . . . She was so cute at 5 . . . Always did want to watch a little girl grow up and [illegible]a blossomed so beautifully . . . Baby at 5 . . . At 10 . . . At 15 . . . How she used to tease Jessel, Price and the rest of [illegible] . . . Then Kirkwood—motherhood, stardom, divorce, sweetheart trouble, and now the Arizona climate . . . Poor kid . . . No big beau or any of the typical up-stage stuff when success crowned her . . . There was the time at 44th Street near the Astor . . . She walked along so proudly and my nerve stranded me for fear she would hand out the chill . . . And anyway, a whole decade had passed since we met . . . As she approached, I looked at her sheepishly . . . She paused . . . "Walter!" she said breathlessly . . . "Golly, Cuddles, I never dreamed you'd recognize me" . . . "Of course I do," etc., etc. . . . Now just as her and [illegible] are reunited she is knocked down . . . Where Renee Adoree [illegible] they say . . . Gussie Apfel of Union Hill rechristened Lita Lee after Lillian Lee, maiden name of Mrs. Edwards . . . It wasn't overwork in the films at all . . . One of those "deals" handed out by a guy she went for . . . If love doesn't make you bugs, it crowds your wings with emotion . . . Poor Cuddles!

Wonder how long Jack and Lillian Gish [illegible] can get away with the gag . . . Everybody is gabbing about it . . . He stays up until all hours and so does she . . . But they always wind up in their own hotel . . . "Well, darling," he says, "I was out with the dumbest girl and was she a bore! Had a terrible evening." And she says, "Me, too, sweetheart. Very dull night for me also. He doesn't know a thing about necking, nothing at all . . . Each imagining the other is merely clowning, kidding, joshing . . . Their best friends will tell you however . . . Or am I Adam-and-Evilminded? . . . Mustn't get sentimental . . . The "wise" guys will say, "Life is like that, son. Mustn't take anything seriously." But what if you are like that? . . . What if you don't want it to happen to you? . . . What if it does? . . . What do you do when it happens? . . . What becomes of all the grand moments?

. . . I mean when It Is Over? . . . I mean what becomes of all those words, those pledges, those nights? . . . Do you laugh it off? . . . Or what? . . . What do they mean, laugh it off?

Nick, the Greek, looks better . . . That is, under the dim cafe tungsterns . . . Hmmmm. I could Go For one of those breaded veal cutlets, Milanaise, at the Stork . . . How the hell do you spell Milanaise? . . . What difference does it make? I'm a stylist . . . Can't stop thinking about the guy who brings his wife to the Abbey and then lets her sit there next to him all night while he pets the paws of the ciggie girls . . . What kind of a guy is that? . . . Funny people at the Abbey . . . They probably get weary of looking at me, too . . . But they are funny . . . The sit there and titter at the antics of Jean . . . He is amused, no doubt, getting a load of them . . . There isn't a kosher couple in the place . . . All inner-circle, I mean . . . Look who's talking! . . . Jimmy mouthed a tongueful when he said . . . The only difference between myself and my enemies is that I seek my recreation where the Bright Lights are, and they sneak up dark alleys . . . Must recommend that St. Louis Highball, rye and coca-cola.

Why do they keep playing "Song of the Islands?" Harriett Hartman still is as gorgeous as she was five years ago when she was the elite's handsomest brunette . . . Now she is as white as Washington's wig . . . Wonder if she will middle-aisle it again, and when, and with what? . . . That Cleveland nurse has intelligence, at that . . . Sweet letter . . . Doesn't know what she wants of life, she says . . . Who does? . . . "He trudged along, not knowing what he sought, and whistled as he went, for want of thought." . . . Wonder who the doll is on crutches, in the stay-up-late places? . . . Pretty . . . You never know what she is doing when she isn't there next to you . . . There's what's-his-name, again?

In the foyer on the settee talking it over with a Mexican divorce expert . . . Haven't failed to spot a phoney yet . . . Can smell a fourflusher two blocks away.

Why do those sills keep sending letters about Vallee? . . . What is he a god or something? . . . He sneezes the same as I do . . . He sleeps, eats, cries, laughs, like anybody else . . . There I go swiping from Shakespeare again . . . Why can't I tell a gag on him or kid him if I like? . . . Nine times out of ten when I heard a gag on myself, I printed it first! . . . Hero worship for Lindy, yes! . . . But Vallee? . . . The wicker isn't large enough to hold the complaints . . . Poor Ruth, she has to read them, but if she had any brains she wouldn't . . . That's the sort of secy to have . . . Train her so she won't even let you see the squawks . . . Only the posies.

Don't know why I laughed, but no could help . . . Poor bum . . . He came out of the night club phone booth and fainted . . . Everybody gets excited when men faint . . . Big guy, at that . . . Looks like he could hit . . . Why did he faint? . . . Too stuffy? . . . Nope . . . Ill? . . . Nope . . . While waiting to be connected with his "heart" his orbs went up and down the booth-walls and when he saw it, it knocked him cold . . . His honey's private number scribbled on the wall! . . . Jack McGowan's crack slays me . . . A native of Constantinople, 155 years old, is coming to visit the U. S. They say he is still able to talk Turkey. Heheheh.

Gotta use Jeff Machamer's wires. He calls Earl Carroll's lassies coarse girls . . . Wonder if that prominent polo player, who borrowed 18 grand from A. C. Penn wants to return any part of it? . . . He could find him in a most receptive mood at 20 E. Delaware, Chicago . . . The reason that dame didn't mention his tag is a good one—and no wonder she hasn't beefed . . . You ought to see the other feller! . . . She only knocked him unconscious with a bottle while he was sleeping . . . Nice girl . . . Very comical the way the coppers are grandstanding over Carroll's opera . . . They arrest them for appearing Ev-ish . . . When it is a brazen Well of Loneliness.

Guess I take the alleged vacation beginning Monday . . . But there's that damb old syndication thing . . . Weighed 155 two months ago and now 142 . . . Scales must be sick . . . Guess I'll scissor two weeks of old columns—ones I liked best. They'll have to like it . . . Gotta get some sunburn on my pan . . . Sunburn always makes you look fit anyway . . . Then do some mag stories and collect that coin which is crying for a father . . . Hmmmm, money-mad he's getting . . . Why not? . . . When you have dough, you rate a nice funeral.

STANLEY BILL PLEASES WITH 'HOLIDAY' AND 'LANTERNS'

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

Nice bill in the Stanley—nice film feature in "Holiday" and exceptionally pleasing stage presentation in "Lanterns." Ann Harding, a good actress if there ever was one, is the star of "Holiday," screen version of Philip Barry's stage play of the same title. Excellent as she is, she has no monopoly of acting honors for the company is fitted to its work like the proverbial glove.

It is just a simple little story of a boy in love with the brunet, whose blonde sister likes the lad a lot. She does her best to promote his suit with all due sisterly loyalty, but the romance goes smash and the blonde suddenly decides she wants to go to Europe and does. You see, the boy has departed, too.

WANTS HOLIDAY

He wants a holiday and the rock in the pathway to love is the regime laid down by the father of the two girls with relation to the marriage of the lad and the brunet, even to the honeymoon, which pater places on a time schedule. The prospective bridegroom rebels and his fiancee stands by father. He thinks he is going to Europe alone, but when he gets aboard ship he will find blonde Linda—Miss Harding—a shipmate.

Mary Astor is a beautiful, lovely Julia, the darker sister, and Robert Ames is the likeable Johnny Case, the boy. Others prominent are Edward Everett Horton and Monroe Owsley.

ORIENTAL FLAVOR

The stage offering, "Lanterns," has an oriental flavor and has no place for the Stanley stage band or a master of ceremonies so Dick Powell and his syncopators have their place in the spotlight in the orchestra pit. In this part of the bill Miss Pittsburgh is introduced with a retinue of bathing beauties.

"Lanterns" has its own group of musicians, Pickard's Chinese Syncopaters, half a dozen or so string pickers who pluck pleasing tunes from their instruments and introduce mild comedy. Joe Wong, Chinese comedian, musician and dancer, is featured. Joe makes a hit.

Actors Play 'Tilty Ann,' Do Show Boat Chores

There are 20 in the ship's Company of the Golden Rod Show Boat, which opens at Montrose Hotel landing, just above Aspinwall, Monday night. All of them, excepting the engineer and an occasional pilot, take some part in the theater. Capt. Menke sells tickets, his brother collects them, the firemen may leave his boilers to sell candy, peanuts and chewing gum down the aisles. The deckhands, the night watchman and the cook's assistant often don white coats and become ushers. The cornet player and the director of the company have been painting the ship.

The three acts and vaudeville are played before the same set and each player is responsible for such properties as he or she employs. The play which will be presented the opening week by the Golden Rod Company is "Tilty Ann," described as a comedy-drama of midwest society, and it will be played exactly as it would have been 25 years ago when Capt. Bill owned his first showboat.

HOOVER SCHOOL CLOSES TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—High up in the Virginia mountains Mrs. Herbert Hoover yesterday bade farewell for a season to the youngsters who have been acquiring their three R's at a school given them by the President and the First Lady.

Commencement exercises at the one-room schoolhouse on a hill above the Hoover camp on the Rapidan took place today but Mrs. Hoover chose yesterday for an informal gathering with the mountain pupils.

She inspected their work and sitting on the steps of the little building with the youngsters grouped about her, she enjoyed a chat on Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover's favorite subject, the study of mountains on the Potomac. That discussion, like all others, which the boys and girls will their summer days.

Some of the children, Miss Christine Ann, the Kentucky teacher whom the Hoovers obtained again will open the schoolhouse for the little group which, but for the President's interest, might never have learned to read and write.

STOLEN POSTAL BLANKS FOUND

DUNKIRK, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—Three hundred postoffice money orders believed to have been stolen from the Rennerdale, Pa., postoffice February 21 have been recovered by local police who said they found them on W. W. Williams, 38, of Pennywood, Monr., after they arrested him for attempting to pass a forged money order for $35.

Police said the money orders were contained in one and one-half books and that they were informed Williams had cashed the remainder of the second book in amounts ranging from $30 to $35.

The money orders were stolen after Williams is alleged to have broken into the Rennerdale postoffice, according to Postal Inspector George Craighead.

Williams passed several of the spurious money orders, Craighead charged, in Corry, Pa., and Canton, Ohio.

Miss O'Donnell finished second last year in the derby from Santa Monica, Cal., to Chicago.

This city is making preparations for a jubilee to mark the start of the derby, in which two score or more of outstanding women fliers will participate.

Legendary Ogopogo Wrecks Boat in Lake

WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C., July 18.—(AP)—Wrecking of his sailboat by the ogopogo, mysterious legendary creature of British Columbia waters, was reported today by Roderick MacKenzie, member of the Provincial Legislature, on his return from a fishing trip on Williams Lake.

The boat struck something elastic and alive," MacKenzie said, "and the uncoiling of the great fish could easily account for the upturning of the craft."

Wounded Vets Given Time for Treatment

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—Disabled World War veterans who are employed under the civil service today were permitted, in an executive order issued by President Hoover, to take unlimited leave without pay to obtain medical treatment. LUTHERAN TALK POSTPONED

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., July 18 (AP).—Dr. C. P. Wiles of Philadelphia last night before the Pittsburgh Lutheran Synod's summer assembly, delayed discussion of the question:

"Is it true that children trained in Sunday schools, in class in catechism, prove less honest and less trustworthy than children who receive no religious training whatever?"

Dr. Wiles promised to discuss the question today.

Dr. Paul W. Koller, of Baltimore, said the Lutheran Church was one organization making no retrenchments in any foreign missions program.

A boat trip around the lake with religious services aboard the steamer Pennsylvania concluded last night's program. Today will be featured by a visit to the Bethesda Orphanage at Meadville, a Lutheran institution.

Lutheran congregations from throughout the Pittsburgh Synod will come here Sunday for a union service in the Temple of Music.

SING SING CHAIR CLAIMS 3 MEN

OSSINING, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Three men were executed in Sing Sing prison last night for the murder of Ferdinand Fechter, Buffalo restaurateur, in a robbery there.

The men were Stephen Grezchowiak, 35, Max Rybarczyk, 31, and Alex Bogdanoff, 35.

The trio had been in the prison death-house more than eight months. Acting Gov. Herbert Lehman reprieved them two weeks ago after Bogdanoff signed an affidavit saying Grezchowiak and Rybarczyk were innocent. He said two Chicago gunmen whom he refused to name were his confederates in the crime.

Grezchowiak and Rybarczyk continued to the last to hope for a reprieve. American Legion representatives attempted to obtain clemency for Grezchowiak.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been overstimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

bests to take advantage of the entire output and value each banana far above rubies.

But throughout the year they are to be bought and knowing that, we pay scant attention to them or their possibilities.

I'll be highly technical for just a moment if you don't mind. Bananas are rich in the energy-producing elements, vitamins and minerals and therefore are a protective and nutritious food. When combined with milk which is rich in protein a well balanced ration results as well as a delicious flavored one.

BANANA SHORTCAKE—Cream
¼ cup butter, add a cup of sugar and cream together. Add 2 eggs well beaten. Sift together 1 cup flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and add alternately with ½ cup milk to butter mixture. Add a teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a square layer cake pan in a moderate oven. When cooled place bananas peeled and cut in half lengthwise, on the top. Cover with English cream filling.

ENGLISH CREAM FILLING—Mix together ¼ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup sugar, dilute with a cup hot milk. Cook, stirring over hot water until it thickens. Cook for 15 minutes. Beat 2 egg yolks add to it ¼ cup sugar and stir into the warm mixture until the egg is cooked, stirring constantly. Cool and add vanilla.

BAKED BANANAS—2 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 cups sliced bananas, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ lemon juice and grated rind.

Bake until the bananas are heated through and the crumbs browned. It will take about 15 minutes. Serve with hard sauce.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

teaspoon of baking soda and 1½ teaspoons of baking powder.

By using the regulation honey batter and adding nuts, cereals or fruits, one may obtain any number of truly delicious results. I'd have the honey cream waffles for breakfast, but I'd keep a supply of the batter in the refrigerator and then when an unexpected afternoon guest came in I'd have a honey pecan or honey date waffle. Make them smaller than the usual size and serve with a fruit sauce on a tea plate; you might even serve them with ice cream for a very festive touch.

BANANA MOUSSE—1 cup banana pulp, ¼ cup sugar, 1 heaping teaspoon gelatin, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ pint whipped cream. Dissolve the gelatin in a little boiling water, then add to the strained banana pulp, add the sugar and lemon juice and mix into the whipping cream, which should be of rather a stiff consistency.

To obtain a uniform mousse it is advisable to mix half of the whipped cream with the fruit—mixing it thoroughly—then fold in the remainder of the whipped cream and pour into the drawers of the refrigerator. This combination will freeze in 4 to 5 hours and make a delicious dessert for 6 to 8 guests.

FRESH PEACH MOUSSE—1 cup strained fresh peaches, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 heaping teaspoon gelatin, ½ pint whipped cream, 1 drop red color. Proceed as in the Banana Mousse recipe.

HAM A LA BRECK—One pint cooked macaroni, 1 cup cold ham finely chopped, 1½ cups milk, 4 eggs slightly beaten, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon mustard.

Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with a layer of cooked macaroni. Cover with finely chopped ham and repeat with another layer of macaroni and ham. Mix milk with slightly beaten eggs, salt, pepper, onion juice and mustard and pour over ham and macaroni. Bake at 350 degrees F. until firm.

BROWN BREAD WITH RAISINS—Soak 1½ cups of stale bread crumbs in 2 cups of cold water for 2 hours. Rub through a colander, add ¾ cup of molasses, 1½ cups each of rye meal, graham flour and corn meal mixed and sifted with 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and 3 teaspoons soda. Add alternately with 1¼ cups water. Beat until smooth, then add 1 cup of washed and floured raisins. Turn into baking powder cans or brown bread molds well buttered and steam for 2 hours. Fill only 2-3 full, as the steaming causes the mixture to increase in bulk.

RHUBARB PUNCH—Mix equal quantities of tea and rhubarb juice together. To each cup of liquid add 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Sweeten to taste with sugar syrup (made by boiling equal quantities of sugar and water together for 5 minutes). Chill and serve with ice. Garnish with lemon and sprigs of mint.

* * *

CHOCOLATE MALT SHAKE—Dissolve 1 tablespoon prepared malt cocoa drink in 1 cup milk. Put in a covered jar or shaker, and shake thoroughly. Add a few drops of peppermint. Chill. Garnish with mint.

ORANGE MILK SHAKE—Mix ½ cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ cup water. Put in shaker and shake thoroughly. Serve with cracked ice. To make this drink more nutritious, add 1 egg before shaking.

* * *

PINEAPPLE FRUIT CUP—Mix equal quantities of pineapple and grape juice. To each cup of this mixture add ½ cup ginger ale. Sweeten to taste with sugar syrup. Garnish with pieces of pineapple and serve ice cold.

America's Sweet Tooth is Largest in World

Honey Plays a Big Part in the Many Sugar And Sugar Coated Things We Eat, Says Dr. Copeland.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator from New York

America leads all countries in the consumption of sugar. Most of this food product is derived from cane and sugar beets. Some of it comes from corn. But another valuable sugar product is honey.

Honey is the sweet food article abstracted from the nectar of flowers. It is deposited by the bees in the cells of the honey comb.

Man has been unable to make a substitute for honey. In spite of extensive investigations very little has been learned of the making of honey. We know that the nectar from the flowers, a thin, watery liquid, is changed while in the honey sac of the bee, into a sweet, rich product. The flavor, as well as the different elements of honey vary according to the source.

Buckwheat honey is dark and more strongly flavored. It contains almost no sucrose, the sort of sugar we get from cane. Alfalfa honey carries less of the so-called impurities and more sucrose.

NUTRITIOUS FOOD

You should buy and eat plenty of honey. It is a concentrated, wholesome, nutritious food. Honey is promptly assimilated by the human body, going into the general circulation without putting extra work on the digestive tract. For this reason, honey can be used by many persons who have been obliged to give up the use of sugar. If you are one of these unfortunate ones, ask your doctor about using honey.

The production of honey on a large scale is an industry which, while ancient, has had an interesting development in recent years. In the old days, honey was secured by killing the bees, mashing up the combs and straining the honey through a cloth. With the invention of the necessary machinery and proper hives, the surplus honey and comb can be cared for in a clean and sanitary manner.

COMBS REFILLABLE

Usually strained honey is obtained by careful cutting of the comb and removal of the honey in a centrifugal machine. This method leaves the comb in a condition to be refilled.

More honey should be consumed. It is delicious on hot biscuits, waffles or pancakes. It is especially good for sweetening berries or on ice cream. Bread, cakes and cookies baked with a small amount of honey remain fresh much longer.

A SIMPLE STEP TOWARDS HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a Daily Essential and Millions Know Its Effectiveness in Relief of Constipation

Perhaps the one simple thing you are not doing to guarantee permanent health is having sufficient roughage in your food. Absence of this roughage is the direct cause of constipation which results in so many other ills—headaches, listlessness, general depression, indigestion and, sometimes, serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. It is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily (in serious cases, with each meal) is the proper amount.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also helps you to health in other ways. It is rich in iron, practically all of which goes into the blood, bringing red, healthy color to the complexion. It helps prevent anemia. Be sure to include it in reducing diets.

Many eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with cream or milk added. It is a delicious addition to cereals, fruits and soups. In cooked foods, it is just as effective in the relief of constipation. Recommended by doctors. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

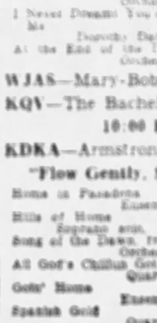
We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

ARMY BAND, COLUMBIA MALE CHORUS and the regular retinue of Friday night soloists will combine to give us a good evening's entertainment.

It is one of those nights where it is far less difficult to select favorite compositions.

We top the list with "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," which will be sung in contralto-soprano duet for the Quakers, KDKA at 10.



Darling Scott

John Seagle, baritone, will interpret "The Rogue Song" on the Cities Service concert, WCAE at 8. Frank Banta and Milton Rettenberg, piano duo, will offer a medley of popular songs. The ever popular Jessica Dragonette will contribute Padilla's "La Monteria," a selection in sharp contrast to the music of today.

The Eskimos, WCAE at 9, want to know "Why Have You Forgotten Waikiki?"

Sullivan's toneful "Lost Chord" will be sung by the Columbia Male Chorus on WJAS at 10.

"Wait Till the Cows Come Home," by the Armour Chorus, KDKA at 9:30, is really quite suggestive.

"My Man" and "If I Had a Man Like You," will be sung by Darling Scott, colorful crooner, during the 9:30 concert at WCAE.

DO YOU KNOW—

THAT Frank Luther, NBC tenor, once was a preacher?

THAT C. Hart Collins, merchandising manager of the Westinghouse radio department, is one of the original founders of the British Broadcasting Company?

THAT Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is to make his first prepared speech over the radio on August 8?

THAT Harry C. Browne, "Hank Simmons" of Show Boat fame, played in the movies with Mary Pickford, Mae Murray, Corinne Griffith and Constance Talmadge?

THAT Tampa, the WCAE magician, is a former partner of Thurston?

THAT "radiodrama" is now a much used word at the studios?

THAT the Arlington Cup Race at Chicago is to be a CBS and NBC feature this Saturday?

THAT C. Francis Jenkins, father of television, got his greatest thrill when a child from looking at stereopticon views in the parlor on Sunday afternoons at his old-fashioned home near Richmond, Ind?

THAT pianos are moved about so much in NBC studios that the composition floors must be refinished twice a year?

THAT Beatrice Belkin is the seventh Roxy star to advance to the Metropolitan?

That the word RADIO was defined nearly 2,000 years ago in the Talmud? The literal translation reads: "Radio—A voice that goes from one end of the world to the other."

"NEW KONJOLA IS WONDERFUL," SAYS THIS MAN

Farmer Eager to Praise Famed Compound for Relief From Stubborn Ailments.

Why is it that time after time, wherever Konjola is known, this new and different medicine puts an end to suffering after all else tried has failed? Indeed, when given a fair trial, Konjola proves its supremacy. Konjola is not designed to give mere quick or temporary relief. Taken after meals, it works with the food you eat and eliminates internal poisons and impurities. If you are in ill health you owe it to yourself to see the Konjola Man and learn about this amazing medicine. Get the facts, as did Mr. S. G. Seals, South View, near Pittsburgh, who recently told the Konjola Man:

MR. S. G. SEALS

"I suffered for three or four years from stomach, liver and kidney weakness. Constipation bothered me for years. Sharp pains across the small of my back and frequent bladder actions disturbed my sleep. I bloated after meals and became short of breath and often nauseated. Bilious attacks and frequent headaches because of a torpid liver made life almost unbearable at times. I was a frequent user of cathartics and purges, and my system had become rundown and weakened.

"Since I have been taking Konjola I have an excellent appetite and am gaining weight and energy. The pain is leaving my back and I am never forced to get up at night because of irregular bladder action. My liver functions perfectly and I am no longer subject to bilious attacks and headaches. My faith in Konjola is without limit . . . Konjola is wonderful."

Not an exceptional case. The files of Konjola are filled to overflowing with thousands equally earnest and sincere.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

GIRL BANDIT AND FOUR PALS SOUGHT

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Mrs. Doyle, of Sharon, is well along in years but physically and mentally she is as alert as any of her big boys, one of whom is "Chilly," the Sun-Telegraph's baseball writer. Mrs. Doyle is one of the favorites of Sidewalks, which entitles us to tell something rather private about her. The other day she was rummaging through the Doyle effects and she found the high-chair in which she had raised her 10 children. She took the high-chair downstairs, painted it and now it's on exhibition to all the Doyle visitors.

Sir:

"I suggest that you put your full weight behind a no-tipping-for-taxicab-drivers' campaign. Recently, for various reasons, I decided to tip the driver 15 cents rather than 25 cents. After all, 15 cents is ample tip for the average ride. But where the drivers had thanked me cordially enough for my quarter tip, they do no more than grunt for 15 cents. Now I have dropped tipping altogether, a cab driver's grunt being a ferocious thing.

With certain information in our possession we are able to predict that the younger generation will be one of tap dancers.

Our authority is Miss Rosalind Krokover, who teaches dancing to the boys and girls of Squirrel Hill. Miss Krokover admits that most of the pupils, with the consent, if not encouragement, of their parents, ask to be made into tap dancers. Nobody knows whither we are drifting.

Most motorists ignore the hitch-hiker, but Basil Peel, of the South Side, smiles them a warm welcome. Mr. Peel is the sort of motorist who does not know where his hood unlocks. If his starter doesn't work, he reasons that the car is through and takes to his feet. Neither does Mr. Peel like to drive, so when a hitch-hiker jerks a worn thumb through the air, Mr. Peel jams on his brakes.

"Can you drive a car?" Mr. Peel asks.

"Yes," the hitch-hiker boasts, and Mr. Peel invites him to enter and drive. Thus endth the Peel labors for that day.

Ask your professional politician which payroll job he prefers and he'll choose one of these: Register of Wills, Delinquent Tax Collector and Sheriff. These are positions which pay, besides salaries, fees. However, the impression exists that the holders of these jobs will recognize their good fortune by making sizeable contributions to their political organization's campaign chest.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 18.

Humor is still rampant in the Senate. Here is the two latest amendments to the treaty, "Freedom of the seas for all neutrals." That was originally suggested at the same time that other famous amendment was: "If your enemy strike you turn the other cheek."

Wars are won by starvation. How you going to starve anybody if everybody else feeds 'em.

The other gem of forlorn hope was: "England must give five of her naval bases."

I don't know how Senator McKellor overlooked Buckingham Palace in that demand.

Yours,

WILL.

STAR MOTHERS HONOR GUESTS AT DINNER

Half-Merry, Half-Sad Women Feted Before Journey To Graves of Hero Sons

Nearly a score of white-haired, half-merry, half-sad women gathered around a table in Webster Hall last night — Gold Star Mothers, who will sail during the summer for France to see the graves of their sacrificed sons.

James F. Malone called them "so many ambassadresses, bound on the sweetest and most sorrowful of all missions—that of filial devotion and peace."

Malone, former councilman, was the principal speaker at this dinner to the mothers of the Eighteth Division of the World War. Besides Gold Star mothers, there were wives, sisters and a few brothers of soldiers who died over there, as well as mothers of veterans.

MOTHERS SPEAK

Presiding was Mrs. W. A. Gordon, chairman of the dinner, which was given by Pennsylvania Post No. 1, Eighteth Division Auxiliary, and the Pittsburgh Chapter, World War Mothers. Speakers besides Malone included four Gold Star mothers who will sail at the end of this month, and a widow: William Fleming, a brother; Miss Gertrude Horne, president of the auxiliary, and Jerry J. Madden, commander of Gen. Lloyd M. Brett Post, Eighteth Division Veterans' Association.

The Gold Star mothers who will leave are Mrs. Mary E. Griffiths, who sails July 30, and Mrs. Joseph Schmucker, Mrs. Anna Schmitt and Mrs. Catherine Murray, who sail July 26. Mrs. Lillian Brotherton, whose husband died overseas, also spoke.

UNKNOWN SOLDIER

Other Gold Star mothers attended. They were Mrs. Nancy McInerney, Mrs. Mary Sullivan, Mrs. Margaret L. Bell, Mrs. Annie Thornily, Mrs. Margaret Finn, Mrs. Bernice M. Baker, Mrs. Evalyn Wipfler, Mrs. Mary Dougherty, and Mrs. Mary T. Keibler.

These have found their sons' graves, either in the U. S. or abroad—all except Mrs. Keibler. Hers is one of the "unknown soldiers," that lost legion whose physical identity was wiped away in the terror and brutality of conflict.

Mrs. Gordon and Miss Horne wished the "ambassadoresses" Godspeed and safe journeys. Mr. Malone paid tribute to the memory of the boys, held sacred in the hearts of their mothers and relatives, adding:

"Nations, cities, communities may forget or may neglect those whose lives have been given that the land of their birth may be safe, but there is one altar where the glow of memory always is perpetually bright. That is the glow in a mother's heart and mind. Sons, alive or dead, are their hope."

A musical program was given by Mrs. Evalyn Laughlin.

B. R. & P. Veterans Will go to Canada

The fourth annual reunion of the veterans of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad will be held August 2 at Crystal Beach, Canada. More than 1,500 veterans are expected to gather at the outing. Local veterans will go to Punxsutawney, where a special rain will take them direct to the boat landing at Buffalo.

Raquel Stops Gossip of Johnson's Admirer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos, a fiery beauty in revolt against her drab home in Hermosa, on the Mexican border, learns from her mother that Bill Johnson, the richest man in town, is building a house in which to install as his bride a lady known as Lily. Raquel, confident of her charms, flirts with Bill and wins a proposal of marriage. She does not love him, but she wants to free herself from the dominance of her dissolute father, Pancho. Then she decides she can't go through with it and flees on a train headed for Phoenix, Ariz. Her thoughts turn back to the ease with which she capured Bill Johnson's heart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III.

Raquel moved restlessly. She peered out of the window. The train on which she was riding had stopped.

Dim figures moved through the yellowish dust fog, pierced by an oil lantern swung above a doorway. She could not make out the name above the door. Not that it mattered. Except to give her assurance that another stretch of miles had been placed between her and Hermosa.

"I wish we'd keep going," she thought. As if in answer to her wish, the train groaned, staggered under way. She indulged a covert smile of satisfaction that the two seats behind her were empty. She would have been conscious of prying eyes. No one had come into the car at this way station. She was free to think, to plan.

"Let's see, where was I——?"

Back in Hermosa on the desert with Bill Johnson. He had put Lily out of his life. It was she, Raquel, he must have.

She did not give Johnson his answer at once, she remembered. She was enjoying too much the power she held over him. She must keep his want for her, keep him on the hot griddle of uncertainty. Thus she would become the more desirable in his eyes. She would be able to drive a better bargain, once she appeared to surrender.

Then, too, she wanted to see Anna Schlemmer. Dunce of an Anna! All Hermosa knew Anna with the putty face and calf eyes would squeeze out her heart's blood for Bill Johnson. She must muzzle Anna. Shut up her silly moolings.

Bill's Money

Raquel Thinks of What It Can Bring

For ever so long she sat before the broken mirror in the Rojos shack that evening after Johnson had confessed his need of her. She had out-distanced Johnson on the trail, left him spurring after her horse's heels.

"I'm going to be Mrs. Bill Johnson," she kept telling the girl in the mirror. "Richest woman in Hermosa. Red silk dress. No, red velvet with a silk back. Rubies for my ears. Bracelets. A ruby ring, shape of a heart. Bill Johnson's heart."

Her lips twisted wryly. What mockery!

She tossed her head. A hard glitter of defiance shone behind the black of her eyes. After all Johnson was not so bad. Just rough. Raw. Unpleasant to touch. She would find ways to keep him at a proper distance—most of the time. Money. Johnson had money. Plenty of it. Pancho, her father, made certain of this.

Travel

Visions Long Journeys With Johnson

All she had needed to do was to ask Pancho how much Johnson was really worth. That question was enough to rouse her father's cupidity. To make him suspect, even hope, some deviltry was afoot.

The very next day her father had brought her the information. Fifty thousand dollars! Pancho, gunzling thick black coffee, smacked his lips over the sum, wiped his ragged bristling mustache with the back of his hand. She turned away from the knowing look he gave her. He must not see the answering flare in her eyes.

Fifty thousand dollars! She had not thought the sum would be so overwhelming.

Now, studying herself in the broken mirror, she gloated. Hateful old Hermosa. Miserable dust-ridden pen of a place. Miserable dust-crusted Hermosans. Dried up. Toads and scorpions. And the Rojoses, most miserable of the lot.

"Maybe I can make Johnson take me to live in Phoenix," she told the girl in the mirror. "Anyhow, he's got to take me on trips to San Antone, and to Chicago, maybe to New York. Then on a ship to Havana and, and—Paris!"

The thought of Paris quite exhausted Raquel's imagination. She returned to reality with a start. Pancho was roaring at her to come help him with his boots. They had, he vowed profanely, grown to his feet.

She found her mother over by the stove in the shadows, rubbing a bruised arm. Emilio was pulling with all his boyish strength at Pancho's boots, while Rosita, great blobs of tears on her pudgy cheeks, helped him. Jose, by the door, shook as with an ague.

Pancho had been loose with his fists again.

Threatening

Announces Intentions to Abusive Father

Raquel brushed aside the children, took her stand before the roaring Pancho. Her hands were on her hips, her arms akimbo, her eyes two glittering red flames in the white of her face.

"Take the boots off yourself, toro furioso," she said coolly to Pancho. "And from now on, keep your hands off these kids. I'm going to marry Bill Johnson! If you don't let up now, and if you ever get into any trouble, I'll take care that his money helps to give you what's comin' to you!"

She saw her father's mouth drop open. As if he had been struck, heavily, between the shoulders. She wheeled and walked out of the open door. She was going to stamp on another fool, Anna Schlemmer.

As Raquel turned in between two crumbling adobe posts, mean makeshifts for a gateway to Mrs. Schlemmer's boarding house, she saw that Anna was sweeping away the alkali dust from the sun-baked patch of hard earth outside the entrance.

Scolds Anna

Raquel Becomes Puzzled About Lily

"You Anna!" Raquel's voice, purposeful and low, bridged the distance between them. The drab slavey relaxed her hold on the broom. It toppled into the powdery dust of the yard. Instinctively, she drew back from the quiet fury that advanced toward her.

"You've been blabbing stories about me and Bill Johnson."

Jersey Residents Driven Out By Crickets

JERSEY CITY, July 18.—(INS.)—Just when the state of New Jersey was living down its reputation for the most vicious mosquitos in the world, along came a plague of crickets. So loud became the chirping today that 25 families in the East Greenville section could stand it no longer and moved out of their homes.

The State Department of Agriculture has promised to send flame throwers and burn out the pests.

4 HURT IN RACE ON SCOOTERS

Four children, racing on scooters made from boards and old roller skates, were injured today when they crashed into a truck at Collier and Idlewild streets.

The purchasing agent of the company, upon receipt of the shipment, notified the prohibition authorities.

Through the court order of distribution the Mercy Hospital will receive 40 gallons; St. Francis Hospital, 35 gallons; Western Pennsylvania Hospital, 35 gallons; St. John's General, 25 gallons; City Tuberculosis Hospital, Leech Farm, 20 gallons; Homeopathic, 6 gallons; Ohio Valley, 6 gallons; Passavant, 5 gallons; Magee, 2 gallons and Children's, 1½ gallons.

John Barnarn, 33, of West General Robinson street, arrested early today after he is alleged to have thrown bricks through windshields of automobiles in the Bennett auto wrecking lot, Water street, was fined $25 or 30 days in jail. He accounted for six forks found in his pockets by saying someone had changed coats with him.

FIVE WANTED IN HOLDUPS, CRASHES

Man, Caring for Victim, Is Hurt by Hit-Run Driver; Five Parties Are Robbed

One man is in South Side Hospital suffering from a fractured skull following a series of crashes resulting from the activities of four youths and a girl who held up three automobile parties in the Glass Run road, near Hays, early today. The car used by the bandits was reported to police as having been stolen.

In preparing to abandon the automobile at 3200 Arlington avenue, the bandits crashed into the car of George S. Conley, 25, of 2434 Spring street, Mt. Oliver. Conley was picked up by a passing motorist, George Rankin, 26, of 203 Clover street, who took him to the South Thirteenth Street Police station to report the accident. While Rankin was returning to the scene of the crash, a hit-run driver passed through a red light at South Twenty-second and Sarah streets, and crashed into the Rankin machine.

SKULL FRACTURED

Rankin was taken to South Side Hospital where it was said he suffered a fracture of the skull. Conley escaped with a slight laceration of the head. The hit-run driver, police said, abandoned his car when it swerved into a building after striking the Rankin machine.

Police traced the ownership of the car from its license plates to Harry Michel, of 4 Allen avenue. Michel said he had loaned his automobile and cards to a brother, and the latter told police he had loaned them to Ralph Paganucci, 22, of 1815 Warrington avenue. Paganucci was arrested later and the cards were found in his possession.

Police say they found two cases of beer, a revolver and a box of cartridges in the car.

MAN, GIRL ROBBED

Peter E. Lucas, of New Homestead, told West Homestead police that he and a girl companion were halted in the road when the bandits' car approached them headon, stopping a few feet away. Lucas was forced out of the machine and made to turn over $20. The girl was robbed of a wrist watch and $6, he said.

Two youths and two girls were robbed of $200, three watches and several rings a few minutes previously, Lucas told police.

Baldwin Township police were notified that two other autos were held up. One contained a Squirrel Hill business man and girl and the other a South Side man and girl. They were robbed of about $125.

BOYS VICTIMS

George Jones, of 605 Hazelwood avenue, reported to detectives that his son and another youth were stopped and robbed of a wrist watch and $9 at the point of a revolver.

The automobile used by the bandits was reported stolen from in front of Mercy Hospital yesterday afternoon, detectives said. The car was owned by Stanley Lesniak, of 1301 Talbot avenue, Braddock, according to West Homestead police.

Boy Hurt in Auto Crash Dies Here

His legs fractured when a truck on which he was riding was struck by an automobile in Blairsville, Pa., yesterday, James H. Rosborough, 14, of Donora, Pa., was brought to the Allegheny General Hospital, where he died several hours later, the coroner's office was informed. The boy was said to have been standing on the running board of the truck when the accident occurred.

Quiz Launches Movement To Limit Horse Traffic

Approximately 800 operators of horse-drawn vehicles today were receiving questionnaires sent out by the Better Traffic Committee to determine the use the drivers make of the downtown district, the boulevards and the Liberty tubes. W. J. Moore, chairman of the trucking and deliveries subcommittee of the traffic group, sent out the questionnaires.

The committee is faced with an alternative of either recommending complete elimination of horse-drawn vehicles from the downtown and tubes, or developing a method of timing deliveries so as not to conflict with the peak hour congestion.

Moore said that since 1927 there has been a decrease of 39.3 per cent in horse-drawn vehicles entering the downtown section. On May 22, during a peak hour, 36 horse-drawn vehicles entered the district and 66 were reported as leaving.

Police Answer Riot Call To End Clash of Trio

When Mrs. Lillian Wallace saw her daughter, Marion, 2, sitting on the lap of a woman in her estranged husband's car at Forbes and Craig streets, last night, she leaped out of the automobile of her brother and engaged in an argument, police reported.

The quarrel terminated in a fight between Mrs. Wallace's husband, A. Wallace, 36, of 2859 Charles street, and her brother, Samuel Tannenbaum, 30, of Detroit, according to police. A riot call sent a squad of police from the Oakland station and the arrest of the two male combatants followed. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

ANNA BURLACK, 18

GIRL 'RADICAL' VISITS HERE

Miss Anna Burlack, 18, is in Pittsburgh today. She is free under $4,000 bond awaiting trial for her life in Atlanta, Ga. Commenting on her arrest she said:

"I tried to speak at a meeting in Atlanta. I was arrested. The attorney general decided we had committed 'insurrection,' which, in Georgia, means the death penalty. He boasts that he will ask the state to send us to death, under a law of 1861—inciting to sedition.

"Five others are under bond. They put us in jail, cut off our reading, branding even the New York Times a radical paper, because it published stories of our arrest.

"Worse still, they put us in insane wards. We had to sleep in relays to be unmolested.

"We only tried to organize workers in the South."

Miss Burlack, a native of Bethlehem, Pa., is making a national lecture tour for the International Labor Defense. She will speak here Sunday night at 805 James street, North Side.

FIFTY RAIDERS ARREST SCORE IN CORRY

19 Places Entered as U. S. Agents and State Police Invade Northern Tier

Twenty persons were under arrest today as sequel to raids on 19 places in Corry, Pa., by federal prohibition agents and state police from the Butler barracks last night.

Assembling eight miles from the town, the raiding party, about 50 in number, invaded the places simultaneously. Fourteen of the establishments visited were found "wet," the federal officers reported. The raids were made on federal search warrants and padlocking proceedings will be instituted in at least one half of the cases. Deputy Administrator Harold D. Wilson, who personally led the raiding party, said.

Clean-up of the town was asked by a committee of citizens because of the apparent laxity of local officials. An hour before the raids were staged a committee of church women served the raiders with refreshments, a novelty in prohibition enforcement.

Most prominent of the places visited, according to the agents, was the Elks Club, where whisky, ale, beer and gin and three slot machines were seized. The steward was arrested, haled before a justice of the peace and fined for maintaining the gambling devices, the dry officers said. Following the hearing, he was taken to Erie to answer the liquor charge.

An automobile containing 60 gallons of moonshine was seized at Twenty-third street and Spring way last night. The owner was being sought.

$50,000 ASKED OF MOTORIST

William Nern, of Wheeling, W. Va., filed a suit in Federal Court against E. P. Shumaker, of Donora, for $50,000, because of injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

He averred in his bill of complaint that while riding as a guest in the automobile owned by L. P. Penny, on August 1, 1928, the latter's machine and the automobile of Shumaker collided on the National highway, near Coon Hollow, Washington County. He alleged the defendant was traveling at a high rate of speed on a curve on the road and failed to serve a warning of his approach.

WEIRTON, W. Va., July 18.—(AP.)—William Marino, 17, arrested here late last night and charged with the shooting, with two companions, of Edward Ratcliff, gasoline station proprietor, of Follansbee, after an alleged attempt to rob the station, Wednesday night, confessed his guilt, police said, and named his two accomplices at the time as John Warzenski, who, he said, was a brother of Paul Jaworski, and Emanuel Garrus, 30.

Marino, the only one of the three captured, was identified by Ratcliff and his son. The other two men have not yet been apprehended. Marino's arrest resulted after some of his possessions had been found in the auto, which was abandoned after the attempted robbery.

Marino said the trio had been involved in several other robberies in the vicinity recently.

DEFER TRIBUTE TO PORTER

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(Universal)—The question of whether the Senate can act on a legislative matter with the House not in session was raised when Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, sought to introduce a resolution to name one of the Federal narcotic farms in memory of the late Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pennsylvania.

Rather than precipitate a debate during the midst of the London naval treaty, Senator Smoot withdrew his unanimous consent request, but later will present the resolution.

Under the resolution, the narcotic farm to be established near Lexington, Ky., would be called the "Stephen G. Porter Institute."

Representative Porter was the author of the farm bill and other important narcotic legislation. He died last month.

Under threat of his weapon the bandit forced Dryden to hand over $70 in cash, then smashed the glass of a window and dived out to the lawn, 30 feet below, and escaped. Before he was surprised the thief had looted a jewel box of gems which included a sapphire and diamond ring, worth $4,000, and a diamond wrist watch.

OLD PLANK ROAD MENACE TOLD AT HEARING

Fire Marshal Sees Peril in Encroaching on Chemical Plant in Highway Work

County Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr has warned Public Service Commissioner Charles H. Young that Glenshaw on the the old Butler plank road is a death trap.

"I want to go on record regarding the danger," the fire marshal said yesterday in testifying in the proceedings instituted by the State Highway Department, the county and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the elimination of three grade crossings and widening of the roadway. Plans for the alteration, it is claimed, would create an additional fire hazard to the plant of the Ball Chemical Company at Glenshaw. Pfarr continued:

"I have felt a dread for the safety of that community, on account of the growth of the automobile. You can replace buildings if destroyed by fire, but you cannot replace lives."

THREE PLANS OPEN

Commissioner Young must approve one of three plans. If he chooses one which will above the Ball concern's railroad siding up against the plant, the building must be moved back. George J. Campbell, counsel for that firm, says that will mean a $300,000 damage suit against the county.

If the widening of the road from 18 to 30 feet encroaches on the Glenshaw Glass Company's property, that concern also will seek damages. These plants are situated across from each other. Pfarr's views were sought on the question of plans.

Pfarr contended any move which would cause encroachment on the chemical plant involved a greater fire hazard and said he wanted the commission to have ample warning of the dangers. He regarded the spot now as a death trap, claiming that encroachment of the chemical plant, followed by an automobile accident, fire or escaping fumes, might result in a great catastrophe, similar to that which occurred at Oakdale during the World War, when scores were killed.

FAVORS WIDE ROADS

He also told Commissioner Young that all highways should be 60 feet in width to provide safety and convenience to the traveling public in Allegheny County.

He assured Commissioner Young that a few inches of safety now means nothing, when compared to what traffic on the highways will be in a few years from now.

Pfarr said that if the chemical plant is encroached upon it must be moved back. Completion of the proposed improvement will do away with grade crossings at Wilmer, Mt. Royal and between Wilmer and Glenshaw.

KOREAN FLOOD TOLL 300

TOKIO, July 18.—(AP.)—The death toll of torrential rains in Southern Korea swelled to about 300 yesterday when a lapdslide buried 50 houses in the village of Suishu, Kogendo providence.

Official estimates placed damage from floods and landslides at nearly 12,000,000 yen (about $6,000,000).

COURT ACTION TO HALT PARK IN VIEW

Guyasuta Managers Insist 'Ownership' Puts Wagers Beyond State Law Ban

Attorney Joseph H. Reich, counsel for operators of the Guyasuta Kennel Club, today said that the operators of the dog races have not abandoned their fight against county officials who seek to stop races at the Freeport road track. Reich said that either today or tomorrow it was likely that he would seek an injunction preventing the district attorney and county detectives from interfering with the operations of the track and the system of having patrons play the winners.

Yesterday District Attorney Ralph H. Park, Reich and Attorney Ralph Tannehill, also representing the operators, held a conference. Attorney Reich declared that in the injunction request he will contend that when visitors at the track purchase an ownership in one of the dogs it does not come under the head of gambling or violate the state gambling laws.

Park declared he would shut up the track if any effort were made to operate. The only way he will be stopped from interfering, he said, is through court action.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Wilson A. Campbell Will Give Luncheon For Mrs. C. W. Davis

The social season is getting dull now that the month of July is half over and August will probably see most society folk in the mountains at summer cottages at the seashore or at resorts where they will stay until socially brilliant fall. Some folks I notice spend quite some time in just traveling from one spot to another and not remaining in one place. And, of course there are any number of small social affairs, luncheons and buffet suppers and small summer dances going on in New Haven that I hear of.

Today [illegible] will be entertained at luncheon at the [illegible] place [illegible] row Mrs. Wilson A. Campbell of Green [illegible] New Haven, [illegible] a [illegible] Mrs. Charles W. [illegible] of Woodland road, Sewickley. NEW TRIMMING DETAILS HELD TO THE MODE WITH PIN TUCKS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JULY 18.—Pin your sartorial faith to a group of pin tucks next season and you won't be disappointed. Vionnet is one of the couturiers from whom one always expects a useful novelty and her latest collection features frocks with intricate designs formed by pin tucks, a touch that is indicative of that smart simplicity and "dressmaker" detail so much liked here and by smart women everywhere. Such frocks need little or no trimming beyond the attractive ornamentation bestowed by such details, and can be worn a season through with never-failing distinction, and the assurance of a distinguished appearance.

IF YOU ARE inclined to hitch your sartorial wagon to a star made of pin tucks, we would ask you to contemplate the handsome Vionnet model shown here. It was made for the very attractive Madame Martinez de Hoz and was worn by her recently while lunching at the Ritz. It is made of black crepe de Chine with the intricate trimming of fine pin tucks smartly handled. The skirt flounce is headed with tucks which widen and are released lower down to form gradually deepening pleats. A narrow, unattached string belt is tied at one side. The sleeves are cut in one piece with the bodice—a typical Vionnet note. The turban which is by Reboux is of turquoise blue velvet with two cross feathers low at the right side, one black, the other turquoise.

THE OTHER SKETCH is of an attractive afternoon frock seen recently at Chantilly. It is of pale pink and gray chiffon, the barred design being of pale pink with delicate plaidings of gray. Pink and white gardenias held the cape-like bertha at the front. Fin-like pieces of alternating barred and plain chiffon with picoted edges were placed low on the skirt of this delicate, but still not too elaborate frock.

These things could be avoided if we would put aside our false modesty our shameful self-mentality and demand that man and woman have medical examinations and submit clean bills-of-health before marriage. But so long as we would do that immoral lives will flourish in bitter agony as this one is crying . . . the children will be born with blind eyes twisted bones diseased bodies.

This letter should be broadcast to all America.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am only 22 years old today, but I have been married for four years four years of the most awful hell a girl could know.

"I loved him so. I thought he was so fine. I thought I was the luckiest girl on earth to have him for a husband. And then—came my terrible awakening.

"He had been a 'regular fellow'—a man about town. I didn't know much about those earlier years of his life. I did not think they mattered. No one told me how much—how awfully much they matter. But I found out. For through his past deeds his health and mine have been ruined. He is a wreck and so am I.

"I can never have a baby. Think what that means, Sally. I loved little babies so and now I can never have one. And it's all so unfair.

"I was good to him . . . straight and true. Think what it means to have this terrible thing to bear. I don't want to consider myself a martyr but Sally, I've never harmed a living thing.

"It seems to me so horrible to suffer as others sin as I am having to suffer. I gave him the years of my life before I married him, never going with another man, never waiting for him to get in a position where I would be possible for us to marry.

"Now I realize that my life is wrecked and all my girlhood has been wasted. And I am not the only one. Every man I married has known girls and with others. One I know has died already and has since been married six times. Who can blame the wives for anything they may do.

"Another life is ruined at the hands of a man. Then why shouldn't one out in the fun and play be wise. I sat home and waited for my downfall. I missed fun and adventure and look what I got for it. There might not have been so much fun and thrills had I stepped out. I don't know. But I do know that because I didn't everything seems so futile. There might have been some peace in having deserved punishment.

Sometimes the thought and the fact of being not guilty of the sin that has ruined me is more horrible than being guilty. So I don't blame the wives. That thing about two wrongs never making a right doesn't reason the torture of the one who has done right and is suffering for the one who has done wrong. Am I right?

Please can you give me a few words of comfort? I need them so. My life seems so futile. So useless now that this terrible thing has happened to me. I just don't know how I am ever going to live it through.

DOLORES.

Can I comfort you? How I wish I could little girl. Life deals us terrible blows sometimes. But you mustn't surrender even though this awful blow has fallen.

He has tainted your body but nothing can taint your mind, if you will refuse to let it. You have loved purity. Love it still! Do not—DO NOT—wreck your standards in your bitterness. He has two-timed you . . . don't two-time yourself. Fight your way back to health. Proper medical treatment will give you a clean body again and your sore heart can be cured by getting out and working and playing—letting the sunlight of joy and friendship and fine effort into your mind.

And try not to hate. You are a victim . . . but HE is a victim, too, child . . . the victim of a vicious, sordid social order, which lets boys grow up in ignorance and permits them to sow wild oats. God help you both! And forgive us who have wronged you!

Boss Regulation Is Women's Job in Home or Office, Fay King Decides

By FAY KING

Women are a success in the home. And women are a success in business.

But I have observed that the most successful women in either sphere depend upon many of the same qualities.

Homes that are happiest are kept as neat and run with as much system as a well regulated office.

Wives look as nice and use as much tact in holding their tongues in criticism of a husband as women in offices do with an irritable boss.

The boss is the head of the office. The husband is the head of the home.

The harmony and happiness in both depend upon respect accorded him.

Many wives or secretaries are as smart as husbands or bosses but it is better not to seem so.

Love's Reawakening

Mrs. Ticer Directs the 'Greens Expedition'

Mrs. Ticer's presence with us on our hunt for Christmas greens entirely changed the route of our expedition. I had expected to go only a short way from home to a woodlot owned by my father where I knew that there was laurel in abundance for the foundations of the Christmas wreaths which we make ourselves each year for every window. I meant to put in the red-berried and glossy-leaved holly later when the shipments should arrive from the city market. But Mrs. Ticer, who has roamed the east end of the island since babyhood and knows it as she does her own backyard, smiled mysteriously when I told her of my plans and said:

"Why don't you go over Amagansett way and then north? I'd like to show you a place over there."

"I'd love to," I said promptly, for experience has taught me that Mrs. Ticer's suggestions are well worth following, and a word to Mary at the wheel sent the car down the wonderful broad boulevard to a fork where a winding narrower road branched off.

"This one," Mrs. Ticer said, and from that moment she was in command, directing Mary to turn from one branching road to another, each narrower than the other, until at last we were in a path just wide enough for the car to pass without being grazed by the branches of the trees.

Mary halted the car and, turning, looked at Mrs. Ticer with eyes in which the lure of adventure had temporarily banished the brooding look which so troubled me.

"I'll never be able to get out of here, we'll leave our bones here unless you remember the way back," she told our neighbor.

Mrs. Ticer laughed comfortably. "I could find my way out blindfold," she said. "I've come here ever since I was a little girl."

"Suppose you meet anyone on this road?" I asked.

"You won't," my neighbor returned. "But if you do, you'll just have to back a little ways, or the other fellow will. Ever so often there's a little place at one side or the other where a team or a car can turn out just enough for another to pass. It's a tight squeeze sometimes, but they can manage it."

"Then right here's where I make a quick change from a chauffeur to a lady," Mary said. "I wouldn't mind trying it if I were alone in the car, but with the kids and all—I haven't driven enough—Aunt Madge, you're the sharkess at this sort of thing, this ought to be pie after those mountain roads you were telling about."

"It's very much like them," I admitted, as we changed seats. But she might as well have kept on driving, for we met no one, and at last by Mrs. Ticer's direction turned into a small opening in the trees which could have held perhaps three cars with crowding, and turned off the engine.

"Here's where we walk," our neighbor said, but added encouragingly, "it's only a little way."

"When do we eat?" Junior asked, with a little swagger that sent Mary off into a giggle which was a most welcome sound to me.

"Mercy on us!" Mrs. Ticer exclaimed. "You don't mean you're hungry already!"

"Yes, we are," Junior retorted stoutly and watching her hopefully, for he has had much experience with our neighbor's little ways. "Is there a place in there where we're going where we can build a fire?"

"Not in there," Mrs. Ticer returned. "The forest man would get after us. But two or three miles farther on we come out on the beach of a lovely pond. It's all sandy and you can have a splendid fire. But you just wait a minute."

She bent to the car and brought out a parcel which she evidently had smuggled into it.

"Here are some jelly sandwiches and cookies I fixed up while I was talking to Sam," she explained.

But even the small boys forgot their sandwiches when we emerged into an opening ringed with holly trees, their glistening green leaves and red berries etched sharply against the softer needles of the pines.

"I thought there wasn't any left on the island," I said when our exclamations of delight were exhausted.

"There hain't much," Mrs. Ticer said, except in places like this where you can't get in with a team or a car. The fellows from the city who hunted it to sell and ruined it all—they used to break down the trees to the roots—have stopped coming because they can't find any more, and the folks around here don't run much to putting up holly. They'd think it too much trouble to come here after it and all they want is a Christmas tree and a wreath they buy. And the rich folks over at Southampton they buy theirs if they want any. I've heard tell how it hain't modern to have Christmas greens."

I believe there are some fashionable Scrooges left in the world," I said drily, for she had touched upon a pet aversion of mine.

"But I know you're the kind that likes to gather your own Christmas greens and carry them home and put them up yourself," she said. "I've been meaning to bring you here each year, but something always comes up. And there's nobody else in the world besides my own family that I'd let see this."

"Thank you," I said earnestly, flushing at her tribute, and then Mary slipped her hand under my arm.

"Suppose we divide into two camps for gathering the holly," she said. "The two boys won't want to leave Mrs. Ticer, they never do, and you and I, Aunt Madge will take one side of this place and see whether we can't beat them."

She pressed my arm significantly as she spoke, and with a skip of my pulses I realized that she wanted to get me out of earshot of the others.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Wives—and 'Married Women'

The marriage-market like the stock-market, seems to have dropped to a new low this year. And the bears appear to be doing their best to wreck it.

The world is full of ex-husbands and ex-wives, with depressing reports. And all this "selling short" is making the younger men and younger girls positively pessimistic about investing their happiness in the matrimonial bonds.

But hold out your palm and let me do a little predicting for you. I have an inside tip!

I see a very bright future for you—a future in which marriage will be a partnership and not a one-sided bargain. A square deal, if not an "ideal."

* * *

There will be TWO kinds of married women. Wives—and plain married women.

* * *

A "married woman" is one who prefers to stick to her office job, in which she is skilled and successful and happy, rather than to take on the kitchen-job at which she knows she would be a flop.

* * *

A "wife" is the kind of woman—and the world is still full of them—whose one ambition, desire and talent in life is to make and run a home, who prefers keeping an ice-box in order or mixing a salad to handling a filing cabinet, selling real estate or flying an airplane.

* * *

Wifehood will be a "job," not a graft or a charity, and will have a standard wage-scale, whereby the wife will share in the profits of the firm.

* * *

The trouble with marriage, today is that it has always been regarded as a purely sentimental arrangement in which kisses counted more than fair play. And lots of the rebellion among disgruntled modern wives is the result of trying to run two jobs—one downtown and one uptown. It can't be done—except in novels and in theory!

Marriage is full of grafters of both sexes—grafters, slackers, molluscs and barnacles.

But when the girls of tomorrow marries the youth of tomorrow there will be a contract between them—a mutual business understanding—which will eliminate all the lady-grafters and all the gentleman-slackers.

They will know when they go to the altar just what they are letting themselves in for, just what they are entitled to GET and just what they have got to contribute. And a man will have to decide right there whether he wants a wife or just a business partner. He can't have BOTH.

A man will have to treat his wife with at least the same courtesy and respect which he shows his stenographer, and a woman will have to treat her husband with the same fairness and consideration which she would show her office manager. Or the "deal" will be off!

And when that happy day comes, there will be practically no disappointed husbands or disillusioned wives. For they will all go into marriage with their eyes wide open, instead of just skidding into it, when they are not looking. Now, cross my palm with silver—and get your wish!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

If You Must Reduce, Do It Slowly

Recent years have witnessed the evil effects of a diet craze. It might have resulted in making us a nation of underweight neurotics had it not been for the awakening of our good sense. Wholesome advice as to right methods of procedure has been accepted.

DR. COPELAND

Every person who considers taking on some drastic reducing diet should first consult a competent physician and submit to his supervision. A too rapid reducing diet may cause much harm.

The breaking down of the fatty tissues when reducing too quickly, causes the body to be flooded with waste products. These poisonous substances accumulate to such an extent that they are incapable of being eliminated or counteracted.

The human frame requires a certain amount of adipose deposit. It supplies a reserve of energy, and acts as a desirable padding material to the other tissues. The whole system works better when lubricated by the fats we eat. It is most essential that growing children and young people have this deserve storage. It assists the body to resist disease.

Although tuberculosis has decreased of late years in general, it is only too true that it has increased alarmingly among young girls and women, between the ages of 15 and 24. It is significant that these are the ones who have become slaves to the slender figure fashion.

Overweight after maturity is another problem which is attracting much attention. This may be dangerous. While diet governs the body weight to a great extent, other factors like the action of the endocrine glands and chronic disturbances of any function of the body may also affect it. This is certainly true in many cases of overweight.

Everyone has easy access to tables showing the average body weights for the individual height and age. When it is found there is a pronounced variation from normal weight, it must be suspected that some underlying cause demands discovery. This is certainly the case if the diet has been a proper one. Your doctor can probably determine this and will advise regarding it.

A reducing diet should be relatively low in fats and carbohydrates and relatively high in proteins. There must be not too much protein but enough. By including in it also the necessary mineral salts, vitamins and bulk which fruits and the leafy vegetables afford, you are pretty sure to attain proper nourishment and a normal weight.

Sugars and starches must be cut down to a minimum. Creams, fatty meats and fish, butter and whole milk cheeses, rich sauces and dressings should be avoided. Cottage cheese is a very good substitute for other cheeses in a reducing diet.

Daily exercises should form the backbone of a reducing program, rather than a cutting down to too dangerously near a minimum food intake. Meals should be sufficiently bulky so that hunger is satisfied, and the organs of digestion and elimination are given something to work upon. If your daily food intake which is fuel for body energy is burned in the body, there should be no residue left to form undesirable fat.

2.—Yes. You should correct your diet and overcome constipation in a natural way.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Anna cringed against the wall of the house.

"I just told I'd seen you—" she whimpered.

"You just told your Ma. Ya-a-h. And she told Lily. And now all hob's broke loose, Booby that you are."

Raquel could hear the dry sobs catch in Anna's throat.

"Honest, Raquel, I didn't mean—"

"I know. You didn't mean for me to find out what a sneak you are. You thought you'd sic Lily on me, so you could get Johnson while Lily and I were tearing each other to pieces. Well, it won't work. I'm on to you, Anna. Bess Johnson. He wouldn't wipe his feet on you, hear? And from now on you keep your tongue in your mouth. Forget Johnson. Forget me. If I ever find you've talked about either of us again—"

Anna's sobs were no longer smothered. They rose a tide of mingled agony and fear. Raquel reached out, jerked the cowering Anna to her feet.

"There, Booby," she said, not unkindly, "go back to your broom. It's what you were made for."

Not Anna's fault, Raquel thought, picking her way out through the gate, that the girl was a fool. One of a pack of fools. Hermosa bred them. A breed of fools. Rabbits. She had set her heel on one of them. Wild horses couldn't drag her name from Anna's lips again.

There remained only—Lily. The painted one was no fool. Now was she, Raquel, going to silence Johnson's Lily?

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Men who try to go through life without ever getting married are usually fuzzy, mentally cramped and shrunken around the heart area. I don't care how loudly they whistle in the dark, a home without a woman in it, even if a man CAN sling a mean omelet and scuffle, is NOT a real home.

When you come down to facts these bachelors who write me about the joys of bachelor life wouldn't be writing if they were not entertaining a secret longing for a marital partner. If they were certain they had the secret of happiness, there wouldn't be any argument that would interest them. The trouble is they have grown a shell and they'd like to shake it, but don't know how. So they want to talk it over with someone.

It's quite the same with bachelor girls. One successful business woman wrote me that she'd chuck her very profitable business if the right man came along and asked her to take up home-making instead.

I published her letter and immediately a group of bachelor girls admitted they felt the same way. A few other die-hards wrote that there was no one for whom they would sacrifice "this freedom."

Women sail high for a time and enjoy their business success or career, but eventually they come to the day when a husband, a home and children is their idea of success—all of them.

A Boston woman sends me this verse, apropo of the bachelor question, written by Grace Crowell:

"A quiet room with sunlight on the floor,
A stove, a chair, a table and a clock,
A curtained window and an open door,
A breath of bloom, a peering hollyhock,
Enamel gleaming cup, towels hung with care,
The shine of dishes and the glint of tin,
A bit of bright clear color here and there,
Where some home-loving woman's touch has been.
....Oh, any room would be too bleak and bare
Unless it shows a woman has been there.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

With larger hat crowns, some of the pretty dollies are growing more and longer hair, which they do in braids at the back, placing them flat and narrow from ear to ear. Femininity is coming back with a rustle of silky ruffles.

Elbows creased and crinkled and with decided evidence of the so-called "crazy bone" are disfiguring. Elbows seldom receive any attention other than the ordinary scrubbing with soap and water. They respond quickly to massage with cocoa butter. Melt a small quantity, rub into the elbows and let it remain on over night. Remove next morning with clear water, and give a light friction with talcum powder.

Straw hats are a help to the girl who laments because her hair is oily. They permit ventilation, and hair needs the air. Scalp massage does not make hair oilier, as is popularly supposed. It brings conditions to normal because it hurries up the blood streams, on which the hair lives and has its being. Cutting down on fat foods gives the sebaceous glands less work to do. Girls with oily complexions and buttery hair will please take notice. They need more fruits, vegetables and cereals.

Old-time hairdressers who know their coiffures say that every seven years there is a change in styles. Not innovations, but radical hirsute upheavals. We are about due for some kind of coiffure revolution. As conditions are the short bob is good style, but it must not be shorn close at the back. The shoulder length style is going strong, and offers itself to interesting variations, with sculptured curls, snail curls and now and then a fluttering ringlet. Yet always it must show restraint. The scrambled head hasn't a show, though Paris has tried to put it over for nearly a year.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Letter of Good Wishes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Recently a very good friend of mine was married, and she is a very well educated lady. I wish to send her a nice letter of congratulations. What should I write?

2. I also want to send her a wedding present, but as she will not have her own home for about three weeks, should I send it now or wait and send it both to her and her husband?

WONDERING.

1. Write her a chatty, friendly letter, telling her of your "high and deep wishes for her happiness always," of your congratulations to her husband who has won so fine a wife, and of your interest in her new home. Tell her, too, of your abiding friendship for her, and of your wish that she and happiness walk always close together.

2. Send your gift now—with your letter if you wish.

Designating That the Party Is Informal

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly inform me whether or not it is proper to write "Formal" or "Informal Dancing Party" on the invitations to a dancing party on the invitations to a dance which is to be given at a country club? I believe that some of my guests will not be able to come in formal attire, and I would like to have them come. A. F.

If you do not wish to have your party a formal one, do not send cards, for cards begin by having a somewhat formal connotation. But, instead, write your invitation in the form of a note, and then you can say, easily and naturally, in the note, that you are going to have an informal party.

Responsibility of the Hostess

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please settle an argument for us? A says that when a girl asks a young man to a dance, the girl should pay all expenses. B says that the young man should pay. What do you think about this?

CONSTANT READER.

I agree with A.

The Late Breakfast Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I am giving a breakfast and will have, besides my family, two guests who are old schoolmates of mine. We will return to my home from church services and I will serve breakfast. When the breakfast is over how long should my friends remain?

2.—Is it customary to invite them for luncheon, or should the hostess plan some form of entertainment for the remainder of the day? READER.

1.—About an hour or an hour and a half.

2.—No—for both parts of this question.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, July 19

The general cast of this day's planetary influences is to be read as most propitious, excepting for the matter of signing all writings and documents with particular precaution, there is no portentous sign, as new projects, old-established interests and finances are all under excellent prospects, with the promise of fine impetus toward success and stability. Purely personal matters are likewise under this most benign sway, and should bring pleasure and profit.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid prospects and achievements, with both old and new ventures under excellent stimulus for success and worth-while development. All should be pushed but be cautious and alert in signing all papers and writings. Personal affairs also thrive and give pleasure.

A child born on this day should have a splendid equipment and opportunity for success and fine attainments in life, both personal and business. But a tendency to "cleverness," craftiness and expediency should be given attention and directed in its early training.

SPORT COMMENT

by HARRY KECK, SPORTS EDITOR

Old Man Stagg. Enters 39th Season. A Coaching Genius.

Night Baseball. Not Yet Perfected. Alex in Bad Again.

A WORD FOR GEORGE PANKA

PAUL STAGG — A. A. STAGG

Is football coaching so strenuous and enervating that it is strictly a young man's job? Well, here's Amos Alonzo Stagg, who will enter his thirty-ninth season at the age of 68 at the University of Chicago this fall. He has survived many storms and faces one of his hardest seasons, but he's still carrying on with his head held high. Shown with "Old Man" Stagg is his son, a quarterback on the Chicago eleven last fall.

Young men who think the football coaching racket is tough and conducive to gray hairs and furrowed brows might well consider the case of the daddy of them all—Amos Alonzo Stagg, who this fall will begin this thirty-ninth consecutive season as coach of the University of Chicago Maroons. On August 16 Stagg will celebrate his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary.

Years ago, they began to call Stagg "Old Man Stagg" on the Midway in Chicago.

Years ago, they began to clamor for his scalp in lean seasons. But he has carried on and still survives and will retain his post as long as he cares for it.

STAGG HAS A tough time. The University of Chicago does not reach out for prep school stars as many of its rivals do. Stagg must make the most of what he has. His teams generally are light and he must resort to an open style of play. As a result he has built up one of the best forward passing attacks in the game, one that is copied far and wide.

For years, the Old Man has been one of the inventive geniuses of football. He is a master of gridiron strategy. Judge Walter P. Steffen, the Carnegie Tech mentor, whose teams always have been noted for their "smartness," is a product of the Stagg school. So was the late Walter Eckersall, who was regarded by many as the outstanding quarterback of all time, and later became a leading authority on the sport and a famous official.

STAGG WAS A football hero at Yale in his playing days. He took up the reins at Chicago in 1892. No other coach boasts such an unbroken term of service at one institution.

Facing his thirty-ninth season, Stagg has back only eight veterans for this year's team. Twelve of the regulars of last year are missing. He will have to rebuild his line, for he has only four letter men back in that department and the huskies coming up from last year's freshman team are few. Practice will not begin until September 15 and not more than 40 men will be on the reporting squad. Three intersectional games are listed, the feature contest being a return engagement by Princeton in Chicago.

NIGHT BASEBALL GETS under way in Pittsburgh when the Homestead Grays meet the Kansas City Monarchs at Forbes Field tonight.*

Interest in the experiment is keen and probably the largest crowd that ever attended a semi-pro contest in this section will be on hand.

Curiosity will draw many of these fans, just as thousands of the curious turned out to see Duquesne University play night football at the same park last fall. Others will come out because night baseball is right down their alley, since their employment during the day prevents them from attending daylight contests.

Night baseball may be here to stay, and, on the other hand, it may prove to be just what its detractors claim, a passing fancy.

IN THIS CONNECTION, the writer was speaking yesterday with a veteran baseball man who has witnessed a number of night games in a big minor league and observed the reaction of the players and the fans. This man is slow to commend or condemn the nocturnal sport. Rather he chooses to place it in the experimental category with the statement that its good and bad points remain to be demonstrated.

His report is that the game as now played is not satisfactory, but he believes it might be improved upon. In part, he said:

"There is no question that night baseball brings out larger crowds than daylight games, at least just now when it is something new. However, the lighting system has not yet been perfected to the point where the players can be sure of themselves. They tell me they cannot gauge the ball as they have been accustomed to in the daytime. This is evident especially with the outfielders. Instead of catching fly balls easily and naturally, they do so with considerable effort. The ball seems to play them false and drops suddenly and heavily into their gloves. The infielders are similarly handicapped in fielding ground balls. Even the umpires complain. They say that if their vision is not trained on a direct line with the ball, so they can follow it from the time it leaves the bat, they lose sight of it entirely. The catchers have trouble handling the delivery of the pitchers.

"IT SEEMS TO me that a pitcher with a good fast ball never should lose a game played at night if he keeps his swiftest either knee high or shoulder high. The same applies to a hurler with a good curve. The batters are completely at their mercy, and their only choice is to either swing blindly or catch the ball coming in a groove on a line with their vision.

"And these are not the only bad features. I have noted that it takes the best batters days to regain their batting eyes in the daylight games after they play a game at night. They don't exactly suffer from Klieg eyes, as the movie stars do, but they are affected by the glare of the high candle power lights used to light up the field.

"From my observation, I would say that night baseball as now played is not all that it might be. However, I am open to conviction. Improvements in the lighting scheme of things may make the departure a great thing."

Well, we shall see what we shall see at Forbes Field tonight.

POOR OLD Grover Cleveland Alexander is in bad again. This time he stands suspended by the Dallas club, of the Texas League, which took him in when the Phillies dropped him as incorrigible. Waivers have been asked on the one time mound star and idol of the fans because of failure to observe training rules and absenting himself from the club without permission.*

Dallas signed Alex to a fat contract for a minor league in the hope that he would prove a good drawing card. He is of no

Game starts at 8:30, daylight saving time.

Night baseball, believed by many owners of minor league clubs to be the game of the future, makes its bow to Pittsburgh tonight at Forbes Field, the sensational innovation being made possible by the ingenuity of Cum Posey, manager of the famous Homestead Grays, who has arranged a long series of games with the Kansas City Monarchs, champions of the Negro National League.

The floodlights used to transform the field from night into daylight are owned by the Kansas City club, and practically all of yesterday was devoted to rigging up the equipment. Owing to the size of Forbes Field, this being the biggest enclosure in which a night game has been presented, six additional reflectors have been installed in the balcony overlooking the first base and the third base side of the field.

EXTRA LIGHTS PROVIDED

Heretofore only three projectors have been utilized by the Monarchs, and these will be stationed midway between first base and third base and in left center field. The trucks conveying the regular apparatus were brought here from Cleveland yesterday, where on Wednesday night the Grays and Monarchs opened their series before 10,000 people at Hooper Field. The balcony lights are fastened on planks which are set on the railings of the box seats and reflect out on and down upon the playing field, making it possible for the spectators to follow the progress of play in the same manner as if it was being played in sunshine.

Twenty-seven flood lights, carrying a total of 100,000 watts, plus the six extra reflectors, will make Forbes Field the brightest lighted field on which the Monarchs have staged any of their games.

BIG CROWD IN PROSPECT

The only thing needed to make Pittsburgh's first night baseball game a success is favorable weather, and if the weather man is in the proper frame of mind tonight the promoters look for an attendance in excess of 15,000. The Pittsburgh Baseball Club officials, who are handling the sale of tickets, will have a large corps of ticket sellers at work, they planning to throw open at least six windows, and eight if necessary. The ticket sale will be handled in the same manner as when the Pirates have one of their big attractions, so that all fans can be inside the park by the time the game starts, at 8:30 o'clock, daylight saving time. The gates will be opened at 7 o'clock.

Aside from possessing the largest portable lighting plant in the country, the Kansas City Monarchs are a strong club, they having won five Negro pennants since 1920, when the circuit was organized. J. L. Wilkinson, owner of the Monarchs, is a charter mem-

JANE HOWARD BOOTH DID NOT TAKE A DRINK OF WATER IN 84 YEARS—Although Mrs. Booth lived to be more than 100 years old, during the last 84 years of her life she did not take a drink of water. At the time she was but 16 years old she swallowed a bug while drinking from a spring and became very ill. After that time she used only tea and light beverages for drinking purposes. Many citizens of her home town, Hammond, Ind., verify this statement. THE 106-YEAR-OLD DUCK—This duck was given to W. H. At the time Booth gave the duck to Allen, it had been the property of the Booth and Emmons family for 68 years. An account of this unusually long-lived fowl is contained in the Erie Independent, published in Erie, Ill.

TOMORROW—THE LARGEST MELON.

Mandell Dethroned By Singer With One-Round Kayo

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, July 18.—His arms outflung, his face distorted with unuttered pain, his sightless eyes staring up at the lights, Sammy Mandell lay stark upon the floor last night and was counted out of his world lightweight championship in 1:46 of the first round. Stricken, he lay inert and unheeding, with the doleful count of 10 sounding in cats that heard not and a referee's arm waving before eyes that could not see.

Over in a neutral corner stood the champion-to-be, Al Singer, of New York, chittering and gibbering with the hysteria of one to whom the fairy story of life has come true. He literally was chuckle-headed with disbelief at his own good fortune and, when the count reached 10, he leaped high in the air, his mouth working strangely and odd sounds issuing from his lips. He is not as graceful as Nilinsky nor as handsome as Barrymore.

But he is a good champion and he won as a good champion should, with the punch.

DEMPSEY CLIMAX

It was almost a Dempsey climax, this punch, a sort of one-shot bulls' eye that left the skipping, flitting human zephyr that had been Sammy Mandell draped all but lifeless, across the axminister. Thrice more the stricken man was beaten down and, at last, he lay there unconscious, never to rise again.

It took four knockdowns in less than two minutes to finish Mandell, first, because they come no gamer than Sam and second because the flustered Singer had punched himself out and finally couldn't have dropped an empty night shirt with a monkey wrench.

He simply had nobody to lick after the first left hook had nailed Mandell on the chin for the original knockdown. To all practical purposes, the fight was over when Mandell arose, with drooping legs and dribbling lips, to face the young savage before him. Only a question of minutes you said, and then, abruptly, you changed the estimate to seconds. The first punch had done it. The thing was a re-enactment of the moth and flame thesis. Too near for once and so out shot the licking searing punch like a flame of light and it was all over.

WAS GOOD CHAMP

Thus ended the career of a good champion and thus began that of another. The Bronx had returned its own to the seats of the mighty, where once the great Leonard sat and royally deigned to receive his subjects, and on a crowd of 35,000 acid home-towners raised a paean of joy by way of acclaim for the home-town boy who had made good.

The fight bore out in all respects the representations that were proffered about Mandell before he entered the ring. They said he was through, and never a truer word was spoken. Mandell was so far through last night that the 8-to-5 and 2-to-1 that was laid against him was bare-faced skulduggery. He didn't have a chance. He probably never had a chance from the moment the match was made.

"Nobody who saw Mandell work on Sunday last could think he would win," said a ringsider after it was over. The writer, however, was given an even more illuminating view of

CARNERA STOPS WRIGHT

OMAHA, July 18 (INS).—Primo Carnera went on his way today after knocking out Bearcat Wright, giant Negro heavyweight, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

Earlier in the fourth stanza the giant Italian knocked the Negro fighter out of the ring with a terrific right to the head. Wright tore down a strand of rope as he went out among the spectators.

Wright went down for another count of nine when he returned to the ring, clambered to his feet and then went down to stay.

Approximately 9,000 spectators witnessed the fight, paying between $12,000 and $15,000.

Unless Carnera is reinstated by the National Boxing Association, he will return to Europe within two weeks, Leon See, his manager, announced today.

Weissmuller to Give Exhibition Sunday

Johnny Weissmuller, one of the greatest swimming champions of all time, will make a personal appearance at the Kennywood Park pool Sunday afternoon, to thrill the crowd with his stroke and diving exhibitions.

Johnny holds several Olympic marks in addition to the national swimming championship, and the show he is to put on at Kennywood Sunday afternoon will include a complete demonstration of the prowess that has raised him to the very top of the water star heap. That he will attract an immense crowd goes without saying.

Weissmuller will make only one appearance at the park Sunday afternoon.

BOSTON, July 18. Lloyd Waner hitting his first full game under his belt and apparently feeling little damage the Pirates today were in a rather hopeful mood, yet they are apprehensive owing to their bob-tailed pitching staff.

Little Lloyd played his first full battle against the Braves yesterday, and his definite appearance in the Pittsburgh battle front proved a happy omen. The Pirates trimmed the Tribe 6 to 2, and Brother Lloyd was prominent in the triumph with a couple of clean hits, the first of which drove in the Pirates first tally.

Ens has no regular pitcher available for today's game, but Glenn Spencer has been impressive at times this season, so the skipper will call upon the Binghamton boy for action in the fourth game of the series.

The Braves will counter with

FEUD CONSUMMATED

The Beilstein-Herrmann [illegible] merly feud was [illegible] summated. Both contenders [illegible] pretty strokes, but last night Ralph seemed unable to accomplish much [illegible] as he would. Karl was hitting nicely, committing comparatively few errors and finding frequent openings in the fraternal defense. He appeared well aware of precisely what he was up against and seeing that Ralph was in erratic mood was quite content to allow victory to come by the simple route of opposing mistakes. The work of Karl was sound and neatly calculated and if he is meeting rivals as he should in the Inter-Park eliminations for the new Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph challenge trophy at Flick Park next week he should stand an excellent chance of progressing far toward the privilege of representing the Steel City in the national public park championships at Washington, D. C., the week of August 18.

Herrmann's Riverview success was gained with considerably more effort. Meyer, a chopper who goes for everything and usually gets it, exhibited genuine grit and determination in the face of a vastly superior attack with the result that the Herrmann ground game crumpled and it was only because he possessed a ripping service and constantly threatening net assault that the victor contrived to carry out the verdict.

Herrmann, a rangy Shady Side Academy product, started auspiciously by cracking hostile service and running to 40-love on his own delivery. Here, however, he double-faulted and two placements by Meyer and as many errors by Jack squared the going. Herrmann led at 3-1, but again blew service for 3-all. Meyer tossed away a 40-15 margin in the seventh game and went under on two nets after a single deuce. Herrmann sustained service at 40-15 for 5-3, whereupon Meyer wobbled in overanxiety to hold delivery and double-faulted on set point at 15-40.

Service prevailed for two games of the second bracket, after which the set was largely a Herrmann affair as Jack took the barrier and smashed and angled off the points on Meyer's consistent but scarcely dangerous slices and lobs. Meyer fought doggedly to turn the tide in the concluding set. He missed cracking Herrmann's service by a point in the initial game but pulled up from love-40 to knot the going at 1-1. A brace of double faults and an out put Herrmann in the love-40 hole in game three but an accelerated new onslaught saved the situation after three deuces. Meyer nabbed game four at love on a smash and three hostile nuts but Herrmann rallied to snare three deuce games in a row to step ahead at 5-2. The rest was easy as Meyer added three errors to a Herrmann smash to lose service at 30-40 for set and match.

MRS. ARTZBERGER COPS

The women's final events went to the winners in no uncertain fashion. Mrs. Artzberger hit too hard and too often for Mrs. Kurtz, who flashed some clever shooting but was unable to wrest command of the situation from her more experienced rival. Miss Searing out-steadied Miss Begler in the Frick debate, the final rubber-set fighting gallantly and protractedly both exchanges and games, but falling short in the pinches. Miss Klages carried not a little peril in her fracas with Miss Artz and it was chiefly by emplotment of this that she breezed through so handily. Miss Artz was woefully weak at backhand, a fact of which Miss Klages took due cognizance by directing most of her shots toward that quarter to profit immensely thereby.

Jack Redmond, Peabody High School southpaw star, and James Spencer, hard-hitting darkhorse, crashed into the Highland final through copping consecutive set victories in the penultimate round. Redmond broke into the prize division by downing R. A. Hicks in a torrid struggle, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. Redmond's sizzling service, fast forehand and dependable backhand turned the trick. Hicks attempted to seize the net behind a barrage of cleves but Redmond was too cool for him, picked his opportunities for passing drives and frequently sallied forward for dazzling overhead kills. Spencer's net-rushing, coupled with incessent pounding of opposing back-hand spelled undoing for [illegible] Joe O'Connor, second seeded entrant in the Highland list. O'Connor met with consistent but somewhat slow forehand thrusts succeeded [illegible] tallying numerous passing shots as Spencer dashed in behind stiff service but on the whole the winner was successful in his sallies both upon delivery and upon returns of O'Connor's rather inadequate second service. The [illegible] 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Bob Broad, Engineering [illegible] Olympia semi-finals thriller, drawing [illegible] O'Neill, St. Mary's [illegible] 6-4, 6-4. O'Neill did most of the serve-hitting and was successful at [illegible] in the splendidly played first set. Thereafter the safety style of Broad dominated the mixing with O'Neill missing many and pulling together only in time to make strong showing in the fourth and ultimate set. Meanwhile Bob Philpott, former Duke varsity netman, scrimmaged with Rodney Snodgrass, former South Hills High satellite, till darkness put a halt to proceedings with Snodgrass in front two sets to one, 10-8, 2-6, 6-2. Philpott, seeded number one, permitted himself to lapse into the cautious style of Snodgrass and unless he rouses himself therefrom early in today's milling, he stands excellent chance of flopping by the wayside.

Frank Brooks, brilliant little Harvard southpaw, and Paul Elliott, 1928 Pittsburgh Center Boys champion, swirled into the Park finals in short order. Brooks drove beautifully both fore and backhand to account for Russell Leiserman, Carnegie Tech varsity mainstay, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, while Elliott waltzed through bewildered Billy McAdams, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1. Brooks seems at the peak of form right now and is displaying a brand of tennis worthy of really fast company. Elliott is slower but tremendously consistent and will depend upon steadiness to offset the powerful baseline game of the Crimson lefthander.

SEMI-FINALS REACHED

The Schenley mixing with the exception of the Goodman-Gershenhausen bracket advanced to the semi-finals without upset. Sammy Brarmer driving Pittite was down seven times at match point to J. M. Kaile but finally saved himself and what is left of the integrity of the seeded list by squeezing out 6-4, 7-9, 8-6 victory. Brarmer's strong forehand and Kane's weak service determined the issue. Alex Blumberger second of the seeded quartet outplayed Martin Grumet, 6-4, 6-1, to move on to encounter Herb Lemask in the lower half while Irvin Goodman, Panther varsity streak and favorite to land the Schenley crown, struck impressive stride to overwhelm Harry Wald, a truly dangerous contender, 6-0, 6-3, by the age-old expedient of hammering a weak backhand and picking off the returns as many as there were at the net.

This afternoon's card provides for men's final tilting at Highland and Frick parks with the Olympia championship affair slated for early evening. The Schenley semi-finals are additional features of the afternoon program, as is the women's finale on the same log. With present perfect weather holding out, the individual park tourneys will achieve completion with the reeling off of the Schenley men's final tomorrow, after which soaking downpour of rain would be by no means amiss before the Inter-Park Series at Frick for rectangles are dusty worn and torn after unremittent use and long-continued drought.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 18.—(INS.)—Harvard University was represented in both brackets of the men's singles tennis tournament for the historic Longwood Bowl entered the semi-final stage today.

The feature match was that which brings together W. Barry Wood, Jr., of New York, noted Harvard all-around athlete, and Clifford Buttz, intercollegiate champion representing Tulane University. In the other half, Richard Murphy, of Utica, N. Y., another Harvard man, meets Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York. The winner of the Wood-Buttz semi-final was heavily favored to win the trophy.

Barry Wood swept into the semi-finals by default from Edward Jacobs, of Pitt, after Wood won the first set, 6-3. An injured instep caused Jacobs to withdraw.

CLUBS QUIT EASTERN LOOP

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 18. (AP.)—Announcement of the withdrawal of the Providence and New Haven clubs from the Eastern League, effective at the close of Saturday's schedule, was made after adjournment of a league meeting early today.

W. R. Carey, president of the league, announced he had been advised by Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the Boston Braves, that he would abandon the Providence franchise. At the same time it was announced that George H. Weiss, president of the New Haven club, had notified the league president that unless he could secure financial assistance from the league he would stop operations.

Carey said the remaining clubs, Allentown, Bridgeport, Springfield and Albany, voted to finish the season as a four-club circuit.

Between Rounds

Johnny Dunn and Jackie Rodgers will indulge in their hardest workouts today for their fourth meeting in the main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night. They will taper off tomorrow and rest on Sunday. Both have found the warm weather advantageous in taking off excess poundage and will make the weight 126 pounds, give or take a pound or two.

Frank Klaas, former middleweight champion of the world, and Johnny Hamm, former National amateur fly weight champion, will act as judges at the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament in the Meyers Bowl Thursday and Friday nights of next week. Bill Simerdinger and Simon Carlson will be the referees and Joe Shambo will do the announcing.

Tuck Corley, of Chicago, leaves a challenge on behalf of the Mac Dupees, by the winners of the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Dunn bout. Mac meets Bud Taylor in Chicago, July 28, and will be ready to box here any time after that. Corley also wants to match Billy Gladstone here. Billy is the former Central A. A. U. featherweight champion who has been going great guns since turning pro.

CHARLEY BAXTER boxes Frankie Newman at Louisville tonight. Jimmy Ryan meets Mike Sarko and Eddie Chamberlain tackles Joe Marro in 10-rounders in Brooklyn, and Harry Harris and Jimmy Darragh box on a benefit card in Wheeling for the family of the late Young Bright, who was killed in a recent bout there. Gorilla Jones boxes Becky Lawless again at San Francisco.

Bushy Graham and Midget Mike O'Dowd box in Cincinnati next Monday.

Townsend's seconds tossed in a towel and then argued about calling a halt and caused a scene in mid-ring when Townsend protested that he wanted to continue. Townsend, 189¼, a trial horse of long standing, was floored twice in the first round and once in the second, but refused to take counts. He also went down in the fifth before the uneven battle was stopped. He weighed 189¼ pounds against 195 for his opponent, who appeared to carry considerable excess weight.

Eddie Speaks, of Herron Hill, 134½, fought the last three rounds of his six-round second bout with Angelo Vergione, of Swissvale, 131½, with his left hand out of commission, but won the decision handily with his stinging right-hand punches to the head. Jimmy Thomas, Negro, of the Hill, 118, defeated Billy Campbell, of the South Side, fighting newspaper stereotype apprentice, 118½, in the six-round opener. Campbell put up a gritty fight after a bad start.

Eddie Kennedy alternated with Grayber in the refereeing. Max Zeugschmidt and Steve Russell were the timers. Dr. M. R. Goldman, the commission physician. Henry Klaas, the announcer, and Bill Gardner, the deputy in charge of the show.

SOLOMEN WINS, WILSON GETS DECISION

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

When dizzier decisions are made than the one that gave Jack Wilson, of the North Side, an alleged victory over Mickey Solomen of New Castle, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, other Pittsburgh judges probably will make them if they continue to live up to their record for consistency.

For nine rounds Solomen punched Wilson about the ring at will, punishing him about the head and body and forcing him to clinch so much that the action became monotonous. Then, in the final round, Wilson began to hurl back desperately and nailed Mickey with a short right to the chin that dropped him along the ropes. Mickey got up after taking a count of seven and again carried the fight to his opponent. Shortly afterward, however, he went down again from a barrage in midring and got up at the count of one swinging a right to the body. He took a hard left to the body and was in a woozy condition when the bell rang, but so far ahead on points that he almost could have got a draw if he had been knocked out.

Yet the two judges, Freddie Lux and Lou Meininger, both voted for Wilson as the winner on the strength of his one round of fighting. Referee Al Grayber properly scored the bout for Solomen, but his vote did not count with the judges agreeing on the wrong man.

PILES UP BIG LEAD

Solomen, a hooking and swinging puncher, took the play away from the tall and rangy and straight-hitting Wilson right at the start by crowding him all over the ring and trying for a knock-out in the opening round. In the second round he let Wilson do the forcing and Jack had a slight edge in that round. Thereafter, Solomen returned to the offensive and literally mobbed his man round after round until the ninth, when Wilson did enough scoring to get an even break. Then came the tenth, in which the tide of battle turned too late for Wilson to win on his merits via the decision route. It was a case of Solomen winning seven rounds and breaking even in one other and Wilson winning only two and messing up things with his clinching most of the time.

It was their third meeting and the first bout in which Wilson was not knocked down by Solomen. He has floored Mickey in each of their clashes. Mickey won the first by a knockout and the second was a draw. Wilson scaled 154¼ pounds and Solomen 152¾. The largest crowd that has turned out for a show in the Millvale arena was mumbling to itself in disgust over the palpably unfair decision as it filed out.

TOWNSEND KNOCKED OUT

Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, won by a technical knockout over Jack Townsend, another Negro heavyweight, now of the Hill, in the fifth round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final, when Townsend's seconds tossed in a towel and then argued about calling a halt and caused a scene in mid-ring when Townsend protested that he wanted to continue. Townsend, 189¼, a trial horse of long standing, was floored twice in the first round and once in the second, but refused to take counts. He also went down in the fifth before the uneven battle was stopped. He weighed 189¼ pounds against 195 for his opponent, who appeared to carry considerable excess weight.

SINGER WINS TITLE WITH KNOCKOUT

the situation. He saw Mandell last night, and it was enough.

He didn't see the old Mandell, a worthy champion who was so good against McLarnin two years ago that James hit himself on the back of the neck trying to land a punch. The writer saw only a broken, inept champion, ready for the kill.

It came with merciful suddenness. They had sparred lightly for a half minute when Singer abruptly lashed out with a left hook. It was the kind of punch that the old Mandell would have head-slipped or lightly flicked aside. Instead it nailed him on the jowl.

For a moment the full effect was not evident. For a moment Mandell stood transfixed and then suddenly slumped to the floor, hurt beyond redemption. One knew instinctively that this was the end, just as one was equally sure that Mandell would arise to make the last desperate gesture of the beaten fighter. He arose too soon. The count was only three when he got to his feet and so he was a distressing pitiable mark for the rush that was to come.

It wasn't long in coming either, for young Singer, seeing Mandell on the floor, went stark mad for a few moments, and if it wasn't for the tragedy of Mandell, the burlesque of Singer and Referee Donovan would have been amusing.

A GAME ENDING

That was Sammy Mandell's end as a champion, not an impressive ending, but a game one. He had held the title since taking it away from Rocky Kansas, in Chicago, four years ago. It was not to be expected that he would hold it forever.

That was Al Singer's beginning as a champion, and I am free to confess that I have seen worse. He has been a good fighter. He ought to be a good champion.

With many league races going full swing, plenty of sandlot baseball action will be flashed this evening on the local lots. The West Penn scheduled game will be off, seeing that Universal has quit sandlot baseball. However, the Commercial and Industrial loop will flash a real game at Carrick Park when Reliance Life and the B. & O. aggregations swing into action. Managers Miller and Rush battled it out for the first half title, so the Railroaders might be interested in putting a crimp in the Insurance boys ideas of second half honors.

SOHO MEETS LINCOLN

At Moultrie Park, Johnny Hornyak will throw his Soho Traders into action against the Lincoln Civics in a Central League game. Soho was runner-up in the first half and is out to stop the Lincoln avenue boys. Hornyak has a good club and with King and Bailey pitching good baseball, the second half title might land around Fifth avenue.

Booster night will be celebrated at Wilson Avenue, where the Pleasant Valley Smilers do their stuff in the City League. Johnny Dunsky has been getting bad breaks from the fans, so Booster Night might bring out the crowd and the shekels as well. Some day the average fan is going to find that it takes money to run a baseball club.

And Pleasant Valley with the City League title tucked under its belt, has not been getting much support. Dormont will provide the opposition to the Smilers and Leo Carroll will be on the mound for the South Hills club.

In other games in the City League Book Shoe will appear at Stowe and J. L. Thomas will invade Homewood.

In the Steel City League loop, Fox meets Clover in the western section, while the St. Elizabeth nine travels to Homestead to meet Lincoln Place.

STOWE BLANKED

Homewood blanked Stowe, 4 to 0; J. L. Thomas tripped the Pleasant Valley Smilers, 5 to 4, and Dormont whipped the North Side Civics, 14 to 6, in City League tilts yesterday. Verona nosed out the Homestead Aces, 2 to 1, and Wilmerding won from North Bessemer, 8 to 7, in the West Penn circuit.

Y. M. H. A. defeated Allegheny Collegians, 2-1, in the Central; Ingram copped from the Presbyterians, 9-2, in the Crafton Church League, and Iroquois set down E. H. Jenna, 4-3, in the Major League.

Byllesby bumped Duquesne Light, 6-1, in the Philadelphia Company circuit, while in the C. & I. loop Reliance Life knocked off Hornes, 9-4, and Mine Safety beat Dravo, 7-4.

ROGAN LIKELY TO START

Bullet Joe Rogan, who has been compared to the late Christy Mathewson, Grover Alexander, Walter Johnson and Dazzy Vance, is the playing manager of the visiting aggregation and he has surrounded himself with some of the most talented Negro baseball players in the West.

And the chances are that this same Rogan will be on the mound against the Grays tonight. Just who will twirl for the Grays Manager Posey would not say in advance. However, he has six men ready for the assignment and they include Smoky Joe Williams, who has won 23 straight games for the Grays this season, Oscar Owens, Lefty Williams, George Briss, Darbie Cooper and Charley Ross.

Keck's Sport Comment

value to the club when he is not in shape to pitch, and, further, isn't even on hand to try.

Alex was one of the pitching greats of all time. The charitable thing to say for him is that he has been his own worst enemy in his declining years. Too bad he lacked the control over himself that he had of the sphere that he hurled plateward.

CONSIDER THE CASE of George Panka. Homestead's promising young heavyweight boxer, who is anxious to fight and finds it tough to get bouts and is considering going back to the bricklaying trade unless business picks up soon.

Panka is the best big prospect that has come along here in years. He has not lost a bout since he began to box professionally around here and was a sensation from the start. He has been improving with each fight and has his heart set on making good in a large way. He deserves a better deal and it is to be hoped that the local promoters will see their way clear to giving him the opportunity. With a dearth of cards, it would pay them well to begin importing worthy opponents for him to meet. In that manner he could enhance his reputation to the point where he should be a standout in the field of ordinary heavies that now are before the public and would repay them by drawing big gates in the not distant future.

Al Singer's one-round knockout victory over Sammy Mandell in New York last night, whereby he gained the lightweight championship of the world, bore out the dope that he had the goods to win over the clever longtime champion if, as pointed out in this column yesterday, he could forget he was facing the champion and fight his fight. Singer is one of the cleverest youngsters the division has known in years and hits so fast with his right hand that his opponents say they cannot see those blows coming. Mandell was ripe to be plucked, for he has shown deterioration in his latest bouts; but Singer had to be right mentally as well as physically for the test to make the most of his opportunity. With his youth and unusual boxing ability and hitting power, the new ruler of the 135-pounders should prove hard to defeat.

SPENCER TRIBE FOE TODAY

Bob Smith or Harry Seibold. The latter had won 11 games this season and is one of the best pitchers in the game.

Ens has only seven pitchers on the present tour, including Steve Swetonic, who is not yet ready, and Leon Chagnon, a youngster whose previous experience is not sufficient to be called a major-league hurler. This leaves Ens with only five pitchers counting Spencer.

LLOYD BRINGS HOPE

But the return of Lloyd, the younger, has buoyed up the hope of the pilot. If the management secures Andy Bednar or some other pitcher of promise, the outlook would be brighter for the last half of the season.

Larry French has won three in a row and five of his last six starts. French has been one of the most impressive hurlers in the league in the period of his winning streak. When scored on in the fifth inning of the third clash here, Larry had pitched practically 15 shutout rounds.

The Braves solved French repealedly, but the lefthander was exceptionally clever with runners on the sacks. No less than 16 of the Tribe were left on the paths.

The Pittsburgh strategists engineered an unusual move in the eighth when they intentionally put the tieing run on the sacks. Runners were on third and second with two out. Walter Berger was at bat and three tallies were needed for a deadlock when Manager Ens ordered a pass for the home-run walloper. After he had been put on first, Sisler made the move look like the right caper by hitting a grounder into Suhr's hands for the last out of the inning.

Lloyd Waner's clean hit to right in the third scored Hemsley with the first run of the battle. Hemsley started the round with a walk, and he moved ahead of French's sacrifice. Lloyd then hit safely, and the catcher scored.

Comorosky smeared a fine three-bagger to right-center with one out in the fourth. Traynor followed with a liner to right which went for three sacks when Clark tried for a driving catch. Suhr walked and Traynor galloped over on Bartell's hit to right.

LOTS OF HITTING

The Braves tallied in the fifth with two out. Berger's tally being the first scored off French in approximately 15 innings. Chatham opened the round with a double to deep center. The third sacker moved along as Rabbit was thrown out, but Traynor and Hemsley turned in a fine play on Berger's drive and the head man was nicked at the plate. Sisler then hit a fly close to the left field line and the effort was a three-bagger, scoring Berger, when the ball bounded past Comorosky.

The Buccos picked up a tally in the sixth which Comorosky opened with a hit off Chatham's glove. Traynor's little fly to short center fell for a lucky double. Commy taking third. Suhr's lone fly scored Comorosky, but Cantwell put on the screws and stopped the advance.

Spohrer worked his way around for the Braves in the seventh. The catcher singled to right with one out and Maguire doubled to the same place, Spohrer taking third. Neun batted for Cantwell and he tapped in front of the plate for a scratch hit that filled the bases. Spohrer scored as French threw out Chatham.

The Pirates scored a run in the eighth with two out on Hemsley's pretty double to left and French's nice single to right. Again in the ninth they added one with two out. Comorosky's fly to short left fell for a double and Traynor singled to center to score Commy.

Nick Altrock Says:

CLEVELAND, July 18.—When I catch up on my reading I may find out what happened to Pittsburgh this year. At the start of the season half the Pirates' strength was on the operating slab or holding hands with nurses, but the team kept busting ahead with its understudies.

Nick Altrock

Since the star invalids returned, the Pirates have been forging backwards like they thought the Phillies were leading the league. I wish Conan Doyle would call me up on my ouija board and tell me what happened to them.

All I know is that they gave Barney Dreyfuss such a pain in the neck he thought he had a goiter.

In a statesman it's Vision

FORESIGHT—an essential of statesmanship and of good cigarette-making too.

KNOWING WHAT SMOKERS WANT—and giving it to them in fullest measure—that's the sound basis on which Chesterfield's popularity has been built.

GOOD TOBACCOS, accurately blended — cigarettes of uniformly good quality and satisfying taste; no wonder that every day sees more and more smokers changing to this skilful blend of quality tobaccos . . . for mildness and for better taste.

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

Many Traders Feel Time Has Come for Breathing Spell, Shares Forced Up

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP) The stock market appeared [illegible] today as operators for the advance [illegible] continued to urge [illegible] grade [illegible] of the almost steady [illegible] of the past week.

Several [illegible] pushed to new high [illegible] the record [illegible] here and [illegible] showed [illegible] inclination [illegible] the Ma[illegible] has [illegible] covered [illegible] that a [illegible] be in order.

Earnings statements averaged substantial[illegible] lower with a few notable exceptions. Chesapeake Corporation reported first half net of $1.64 a share against $1.56 and S. S. Kresge netted 70 cents a share in the June quarter against 65. Chicago and Alton, one of the first railroads to report, June net showed a deficit twice as large as last year.

COPPER SAGS

General Motors reported a sharp reduction in [illegible] the fact that sales to [illegible] were about 10,000 units greater than factory sales to dealers showed a pleasing reduction of stocks. Copper continued to sag with metal reported moving finally at 11 cents after the 11½ cent price failed to attract many buyers. Granby reported second quarter production costs just under 10 cents.

Credit conditions were practically unchanged with call money at 2 per cent. Another shipment of $4,000,000 in gold to France was announced but at least some bankers feel that the country can afford to lose a large quantity of the yellow metal. The imports of $200,000,000 this year were not really needed although they undoubtedly contributed to the abrupt ease in money rates. There is a notable tightening of longer term credit in this market but no decided upturn in money rates is expected.

POOL STOCKS RISE

Among the pool favorites Radio Loews Electric Auto Lite and Houston Oil rose 2 to more than 3 points. There was a burst of activity of International Telephone which mounted a couple of points. Some of the rails were strong notably Wabash which gained more than 3 in response to the Baltimore and Ohio's final acquiescence in the five Eastern Trunk Line plan. Some of the coppers sold up a couple of points in what appeared to be short covering on the further reduction in red metal prices. Coca Cola International Harvester National Steel and Allied Chemical made fair gains. Case was an active high flier selling up more than 13.

On the other hand U. S. Steel American Telephone American Can Vanadium General Electric Westinghouse Electric and Electric Power and Light sagged a point or two at times although several appeared to meet good support particularly U. S. Steel Atchison and Union and Pacific lost 3 each and Auburn more than 5.

Away From Wall Street Pessimism Disappears

By B. C. FORBES

ON THE TRAIN, July 18.—At least once a year the writer escapes from New York and from the siren song of the stock ticker. It is especially refreshing to get away from the atmosphere of Wall Street this season for that atmosphere has been so charged with gloom that it has been hard to breathe.

Had the writer continued to listen to the tales of Wall Street woe the walls of pessimism he thus might have become contaminated by the enveloping germs of despair.

And that is exactly what he is determined to resist at this stage of our economic cycle. The time to be bearish was 12 months ago. The time to be hopeful is now. A year ago we were reveling in inflation. Today we are wallowing in deflation—stock deflation, undue deflation, credit-one deflation.

So it is good to be away from the haunts of stock speculation. As you ride along on the train people seem to be going about their daily tasks very much as usual. Cattle are browsing apparently as contented as if Wall Street never had a panic. The trees look healthy, the crops normal, children play light-heartedly, a goodly number of freight cars are moving. Motor trucks are everywhere in evidence. Automobiles abound, many gaily-clad carrying holiday makers. You see women entering stores and others emerging with purchases. Signs of unemployment do not hit you in the eye, no matter how it may be under the surface.

In short, life appears to be going as usual.

This state of affairs is a train of thought—no, an engine, one to be sure. For, apart from Einstein, there ain't no such animal.

All these people one sees during the gaily moving panorama are wearing just as many clothes as they wore a year ago, when Wall Street could see no end ever ever to frolicking prosperity. They are wearing as many shoes as many hats.

They are consuming pretty much the same amount of food. They are living in the same homes furnished in the same rate—also their rugs and carpets, their bed and table linen (or cotton), their dishes, their pots and pans, their everything.

We know that there are more automobiles in the country now than a year ago, more telephones, more radios, more refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, more washing machines.

And wear and tear go on whether U. S. Steel or Radio jump up five points or flop ten points. Life doesn't stand still. Consumption doesn't stand still.

You reach the definite conclusion that new buying has been cut down much more than actual consumption, actual tear and wear all through the current year, and that conclusion leads to another—that buyers cannot keep up their—so to speak—strike indefinitely, that they must come into the market place in the very near future for fresh supplies of practically all lines of merchandise.

Montreal, a city not visited in fifteen years, is the next stopping place. How much of a metropolis it has become few of us living on this side of the Canadian boundary realize.

As a postscript one might admit, that if all tales be true, lots of Americans who pay the city hurried visits see very little of it, but sometimes see that little double.

TOBACCO FIRM AT PEAK OF PROSPERITY

American Company Makes Remarkable Showing in Face of General Slump

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 18.—In this period of economic transition, when there is a widespread disposition to look longingly back to the alleged good old bull market days, it is refreshing to talk to George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, whose peak prosperity is now with us.

The remarkable showing this year in 1930 of Mr. Hill's company is not ascribable solely to the stability of the tobacco industry. Asked why his company has been immune to the prevailing disease of economic recession, which has afflicted most industries, Mr. Hill indicated that by analyzing market opportunities, using ingenuity in advertising and selling, and by employing a little intelligence that company has been able to move substantially forward.

First of all, Mr. Hill is enthusiastic for the cigaret. He believes that the industry has just begun to scratch the surface of sales possibilities. Cigaret consumption is now about 120,000,000,000 a year, and Mr. Hill, who is just in his forties, expects sales to rise to 250,000,000,000 a year during his lifetime. When the late Percival Hill, who had been president of the company, passed away five years ago, and he was succeeded by his son George, the outside world wondered whether the new head of the Hill family could live up to the family traditions. It is not now too early to say that young Hill has a genius for advertising and selling in the tobacco industry, and has forced recognition for himself as the most dynamic figure in the industry.

ORIGINATES ADVERTISING

He is far from a placid, colorless business executive. He does not merely authorize advertising expenditures, but himself originates the basic advertising appeals and himself approves all the important copy. His advertising ideas bristle with controversy and made the country sit up and take notice. Mr. Hill thinks that copy should not only compete for attention with other advertising, but also with news stories and editorial articles. His model for skill in attention getting is Arthur Brisbane.

As one of the largest investors in advertising and certainly one of the most successful, Mr. Hill can talk authoritatively on the subject. His preference is newspaper advertising. He said the only trouble with it is that it is so expensive, but he added quickly that it's worth it. Mr. Hill first tests out a new advertising appeal. If it is successful he can see a reflection in sales within 10 days. If an idea pulls, Mr. Hill invests lavishly in advertising, preferring huge expenditures to the hazard of not being heard in the din of competitive interests. Among the famous slogans which Mr. Hill inspired are "Reach for a Lucky" instead of a "Sweet" which has since been modified to "When Tempted to Over-indulge Reach for a Lucky Instead."

In connection with the Cremo advertising of the subsidiary American Cigar Company in which Mr. Hill's company invested $20,000,000 for the purpose of resuscitating the cigar company, Mr. Hill inaugurated the radical campaign of calling attention to the alleged use of spit in certain hand-made cigars. Thus in indirection he overcame the public prejudice against machine made cigars. Mr. Hill turned to the 5-cent cigar because he said he agreed with the observation of the late Thomas Marshall, former vice president of the United States, to the effect that what America needs most is a good 5-cent cigar. A year ago fewer than 100,000 of these cigars were sold by the company daily; the average daily sale has now been boosted to 1,397,000.

SHOWS OPERATING PROFIT

The company is not yet making any profit, but apart from advertising expenditures is showing an operating profit. Mr. Hill is willing to invest in advertising for this product as long as the sales curve continues sharply upward.

Mr. Hill, when asked whether it was not dangerous to associate an unpleasant idea with advertising, said he was not sure that he had seen both positive and negative advertising ideas succeed. He said that his test was similar to that of the editor: will an idea interest people and is it sound and in the public interest? Mr. Hill does not think that advertising is worth while unless the product behind it is sound. He thinks that each new product to endure must find a niche for itself in the national life. A cigaret must have a new flavor or some other important new quality. It cannot be put across permanently merely by clever selling, Mr. Hill insisted.

Mr. Hill's most radical change in policy was to concentrate nearly all expenditures on Lucky Strikes, the popular brand, rather than scattering it among 60 products. His idea is to apply the Ford notion of mass production and distribution to the cigaret business, riding a winner. The success of the idea of backing a winner is disclosed by the fact that during the first five months of this year when, according to government figures, cigaret consumption fell off to the extent of 14,260,000, the sale of Lucky Strikes, which Mr. Hill asserts is the best selling cigaret in the United States today, increased by 2,383,120,000.

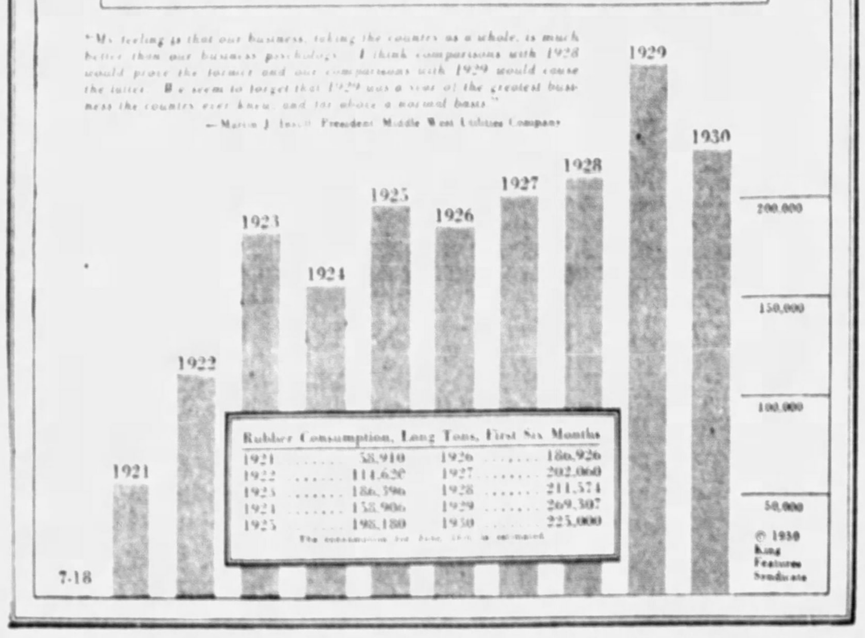
Rubber Consumption Back to Normal

Chart compares the total consumption of crude rubber in the United States during the first half of 1930 with the corresponding figures for the past nine years. Source: The Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc.

During the first half of 1930, the consumption of crude rubber, one of our important basic commodities, greatly exceeded all other corresponding periods, except, of course, 1929. This is another gigantic industry which is now back to normal and having a good business year.



"My feeling is that our business, taking the country as a whole, is much better than our business psychology. I think comparisons with 1928 would prove the former and our comparisons with 1929 would cause the latter. We seem to forget that 1929 was a year of the greatest business the country ever knew, and for whole a normal basis."

Quarterly Statements Show Declines

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

SECOND QUARTER EARNINGS statements, which have been made public by leading corporations this week, present a fairly accurate picture of what to expect of the balance of the reports.

Nearly all the statements show sharp declines in comparison with the corresponding period of last year as well as the first quarter of this year. A few companies which are engaged in highly specialized types of business or which have benefited from particular conditions have held their ground.

The soundness of most of our industrial organizations is indicated by the fact that comparatively few companies have reported operations at a loss. Most of the companies whose income accounts for the quarter ended in red ink were working on an unsatisfactory basis even under the busy conditions of last year.

Cities Service Gains

FEW LARGE GAINS have been reported. An outstanding exception was the statement of Cities Service which, due to the expansion of its business and the stability of most utility operations, published earnings contrasting sharply with the general trend. Net earnings of this company available for dividends and reserves in June reached $4,425,304 compared with $2,780,355 in the corresponding months of 1929. This was an increase of 72 per cent. For the first six months of the year net reached $23,691,849 which was nearly double net of $12,944,853 in the same period of last year.

For the 12 months ended June 30, which includes all the period of depression, Cities Service reported net earned for stock and reserves of $47,517,981 compared with $31,439,277 in the previous year. This was equivalent to $1.44 a share on the average number of shares of common stock as compared with $1.13 a year before. In studying Cities Service earnings, however, it must be remembered that no provision for depreciation or depletion is made.

Harbison Has Incease

THE FIRST PITTSBURGH company to report showed a gain for the six months. Harbison-Walker earned net of $2,552,000 or $1.71 a common share for the first half of 1930 against $2,505,000 or $1.68 a share in the corresponding period of 1929. Profit for the second quarter, however, was slightly smaller than in the first quarter and the same three months of last year.

Among other companies reporting moderate gains were two in specialized lines of activity. Canada Dry held the best quarter in its history with profit equivalent to $2.29 a share in the three months ended June 30. This compared with $2.18 a share a year ago.

William Wrigley, Jr. Company show a slight gain with net of $1.50 a share for the quarter against $1.49 in the preceding year.

Declines Shown

WITH THESE FEW exceptions, most of the companies reporting for the quarter and the half year have announced reductions in their earnings. Timken Roller Bearing with net of $2.54 a share for the half year showed a decline of 97 cents. Congress Cigar profits were cut in half. Bing and Bing, Inc., reported a corresponding drop. Pettibone Mulliken earnings declined even more sharply.

The experience of the Cities Service Company was by no means representative of the public utilities. Public Service of Northern New Jersey reported June surplus after charges of $2,325,085 against $2,850,071 a year ago.

The bulk of the quarterly and half yearly statements will be published during the next two weeks. Most of them will show declines.

GEN'L MOTORS' SALES LAG

NEW YORK, July 18.—During the month of June, General Motors dealers in the United States delivered to consumers 97,318 cars, according to an announcement made today by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president. This compares with 131,817 in the month of May and with 154,437 in June, 1929. Sales by General Motors manufacturing divisions to dealers in the United States amounted to 87,595 cars, as compared with 136,169 in May and as compared further with 163,704 in June, 1929.

Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments amounted to 97,440 cars, or 4,000 cars per day, as compared with 147,483 in May and as compared further with 200,754 in June, 1929.

WALL STREET HEARS

That Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation may make some arrangement to pay off the arrears in Pierce Oil preferred, amounting to about $80 a share. It is possible that it may be paid in Sinclair stock.

That Kelvinator earned during the first half approximately $2.35 a share.

That the steady stock market advance of the past week has made traders rather cautious, although some maintain that the absorption of selling on the way up has kept the technical position strong.

That important developments relative to foreign expansion will be shortly announced by American Can.

BROKERS' LOANS UP $40,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City increased $40,000,000 during the week ended July 16, to $3,243,000,000. This compares with $3,203,000,000 in the preceding week and with the high record of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

STEEL MARKET LOOKING UP

Indications that the current decline in steel plant operations and prices of leading products has been checked are appearing gradually.

One of the largest steel producers in the Youngstown area reports there have been no important price changes for 10 days and that in all probability the next important revision will be upward. Effects of improved schedules for automobile makers such as Ford have encouraged sheet manufacturers of the district to predict higher operations in the near future.

B. F. Fairless, executive vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, states his company expect improvement in the steel business in August before the usual seasonal upturn in the fall months appears. Leading manufacturers point out consumers' stocks are abnormally low and need to be replenished.

Rubber Market.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Second Quarter Reports of Big Corporations Soon Ready.

Within the next fortnight the Street will have had the reports covering the operations of several of the country's largest industrial enterprises for the second quarter and first half of the year. The General Motors figures for those periods will probably be available some time next week, and the same probably holds true for the Bethlehem Steel return. The steel corporation's report will be ready for public consumption following the close of the market a week from Tuesday. While these corporations are not expected to make a favorable showing in contrast with returns for the same period of 1929, it is generally believed that results will reveal dividend requirements covered by an ample margin.

Some observers are moved to remark that stocks which had been the leaders on the rise until recently are now tending to give evidence of attempts at something in the way of distribution. They cite several developments within the market since the beginning of the week, which they claim lend support to this theory. They point first to the disposition of bull leaders to shift into new groups, such as the motors, oils and amusement shares. It is contended that the leaders, while nominally extending their rally tops now, appear to meet considerable in the way of offerings. An effort at some distribution should not prove surprising, however, considering the sharp recovery which the leaders have enjoyed.

Naturally the limited floating supply of the stock is always an important factor bearing on the market action of Vanadium. It renders the stock readily responsive to concerted operation. But current strength, according to reports going the rounds will be partly explained at least by the forthcoming semi-annual report. It is expected that net of $2,150,000 equivalent to around $5 a share will be revealed when the figures appear in the next few days. This would be substantially better than even the most sanguine had anticipated, but attention is called to the fact that the showing will include in a substantial way income of non-recurring character, presumably arising from the sale of some of its asset.

The recent action of Gold Dust indicates that its sponsors have completed their accumulation and are preparing to go ahead with more aggressive operations in their favorite. The company is one of the leaders in the food industry, and is reputed to have used to advantage the weakness in the commodity markets. Current earnings are reliably reported to be slightly ahead of the showing for 1929 when net equal to $4.06 per share was shown. Assuming that similar results will be reported this year, the stock based on prevailing market valuation at 42, is selling for approximately 10 times earnings. Annual dividend of $2.50 per share provides a return of more than 6 per cent.

Chrysler's action in the last day or two has been such as might suggest renewal of more aggressive tactics by interests who have sponsored the stock for a long time past. It tends moreover to bear out the report that the syndicate agreement which is understood to have terminated early this week, has been renewed for another prolonged period. Strength in the stock incidentally is accompanied by reports that the company is bringing out a new model in the eight line which is expected to prove a profitable venture.

There is a possibility that the second quarter of Yellow Truck will be the best in many years and may establish a new record for a three-month period. The company had active business during the quarter, with many customers taking deliveries on contracts. As these contracts have now been completed the outlook for the current three months is not quite so favorable. Much will depend upon the receipt of new orders and thus far there has been no opportunity to make any prediction. Profit-taking has come into the stock on upturns recently.

Large Producers Cut Copper to 11¼ Cents

NEW YORK, July 18.—The larger copper producers have lowered their price to 11¼ cents a pound, delivered, in the domestic market, and large sales are understood to have been made at that price.

It is expected the foreign price also will be cut to 11.55 cents a pound, c. i. f. European base ports.

Plate Glass Output Seeks Lower Level

NEW YORK, July 18.—Production of polished plate glass in the United States during June was 9,128,216 square feet, compared with 12,278,002 square feet in June 1929. This makes the total production for the first six months of 1930, 66,367,375 square feet, against 73,474,143 square feet in the same period last year.

Minnesota Steel Co. Runs at Capacity

DULUTH, July 18.—For the first time in several years the plant of the Minnesota Steel Company, subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, is operating practically at capacity in all departments.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Bobbsey Girls

"We have got to get at the bottom of this matter."

Judge Fessenden spoke coldly.

Everyone in his big library stared at Mary Sissons.

Mary was thirty, demure, quiet and seemingly reffined. For five years she had worked for Mrs. Palmer, a fairly wealthy widow. Mary managed the entire establishment and did it most efficiently.

No one in Plainville knew much about Mary Sissons. She had arrived in response to an advertisement for a housekeeper. She had worked steadily, attended church, took books from the local library and read and then went to pictures and lived quietly.

Once each week she drove, phoned to Cliffmere a town fifty miles away. She paid Mrs. Palmer for the calls and when questioned always said that she was inquiring about an old quaintance.

It was about a year ago that Thomas Deering came back home to Plainville and began the management of the great fruit orchards he had inherited from his father. Deering had seemed to take an interest in Mary. He was a rather quiet man about her own age and studious. He had been attached to a natural history museum up to the time of his father's death. Then he left his duties to come home and keep up the immense place that had for years paid a handsome profit.

Deering called on Mrs. Palmer occasionally. They had been childhood friends. Mrs. Palmer was delighted at his return and dreamed her dreams of marrying him and living in the handsome big home on the Deering estate.

Tom Deering seemed to be rather interested in Mary.

Clever Woman

This amused the neighbors where everyone knew almost all about everyone else. It didn't amuse Mrs. Palmer at all. She was on the point of discharging Mary several times, but Mrs. Palmer was canny. If she did this, Deering's sympathy would be all for Mary and goodness knew what would happen—he might be fool enough to marry the girl out of pity.

Mrs. Palmer was the sort of woman who, when she went out to buy green thumb tacks, came back with green thumb tacks. Now she was determined to marry Tom Deering and she intended to marry no one else.

However she had been getting somewhat more disturbed than usual because Deering had been more attentive to Mary than ever. Judge Fessenden's wife, who lived next door to the library, had told Mrs. Palmer, her closest chum, that Deering always arrived at the library the same day and hour that Mary went there for books.

Then there was the day when Mrs. Palmer overheard Deering and Mary in the cherry orchard. Mary was crying and saying, "No, Tom, I couldn't do that."

Mrs. Palmer thought she knew all about it. She said to Mary that night: "All men are alike. Mr. Deering doesn't care for you. He just wants to amuse himself. I am glad you see through him and prefer to keep your self respect."

Mary looked at her queerly but said nothing.

And so when Sheriff Ames came over to Mrs. Palmer's house this day and told Mary that she would have to go down to Judge Fessenden's office to explain her share in the murder of Harvey Jones out at the Half-Way House the night before, it created much excitement.

"Very well," Mary said.

Mary was exceedingly pale and had been crying.

Jed Wilkins, who owned the village "taxi," was already locked up in connection with this murder.

Plainville is a small place. News sped swiftly. There was a big crowd outside the building where Judge Fessenden had his office.

They went in. Mrs. Palmer was asked to be there at the little hearing because she had important things to tell. Her dear friend, Judge Fessenden's wife, went with her.

There was also Clyde Peters, keeper of the Half-Way House, Sheriff Ames, Dr. Foley, Coroner Watson, County Attorney Oliphant and Tom Deering.

Private Hearing

"This is a private hearing, Deering," the Judge had told him.

"What makes it private, Judge?" Deering asked cheerfully.

The Judge reddened with anger.

"Very well, remain," he said crossly. "We are going to get to the bottom of this. Mrs. Palmer——" he indicated a chair near him.

"What do you know about this?" he asked her.

Mrs. Palmer tried to look shocked and pained. In reality she was inwardly gloating.

"Must I tell," she hesitated. They couldn't have stopped her.

"Well," she said, when informed that she must, tell, "Mary, Miss Sissons, had Jed Wilkins call on her about seven last night. Without a word of explanation to me she went out and drove away with him." She paused for effect.

"It was daylight when Mary came in this morning!"

Everyone stared at Mary, who sat gazing out of the window.

"Did you question her?"

"No, I was too sleepy. I questioned her this morning. She was nervous and crying. She said that a little later she would tell me; that she was too upset to talk. When Sheriff Ames came for her just now and I went to call her, she had her things packed up as if ready to run away!"

"Is that all?"

Mrs. Palmer stated at Judge Fessenden's call to ask if that was all. He turned to Mary.

"We are going to get to the bottom of this, Mary," he said, and without wasting words did you or did you not have any part in the murder of this man Jones?"

"To my knowledge, I never spoke to him," Mary answered.

The county attorney sat back and listened. It was his place to question her, but Judge Fessenden was the big Poo-Bah of Plainville and he preferred to take everything into his own hands from a decision in a love affair to the bossing of the town.

"That's isn't answering my question."

"I couldn't have killed a man I never saw," Mary stated calmly.

Tom Deering stood up slowly.

"As I to understand, Judge, that you are acting in the double capacity of prosecuting attorney and justice of the peace, may I be present at this informal little hearing?" he asked.

"As it is informal I have that privilege," the Judge snapped.

Husband Dying

"Were you at the Half Way House last night?"

"I was on the front porch."

This caused everyone to gasp and stare at her in amazement.

"Why were you on the front porch?"

"I was looking for Mr. Wilkins."

"Did you have a rendezvous there with him?"

"I engaged him to drive me to Cliffmere."

"And you two stopped off at the Half-Way House?" "It doesn't matter who is hurt here. We must get at the truth at the bottom of this—murder has been committed—reputations do not count in a case like this," the Judge said sternly.

Mr. Wilkins stopped at the Half-Way House. He said he had to get some oil. I waited probably 15 minutes and I suspected that he had stopped for liquor. I couldn't take chances with a drunken driver and I got out of the car to look for him."

"Indeed. Did you find him?"

"I saw him kicked out of the door, a big red-headed man kicked him out."

Deering got up again.

"Judge," he said, easily, "wasn't the murdered Jones a big red-headed man?"

"Are you here as an attorney, Deering?" the judge snapped.

"I didn't intend to be, but as I was admitted to the bar in this state some four years ago, I believe I will appear for Mary Sissons, if you wish."

"All right," the judge answered. He recalled then that what Deering said was true. "Yes, that was the murdered man who kicked Williams out. It was on account of the fight that Wilkins killed him. I want to find out to what extent this woman helped in the murder."

"Tell him, Mary," Deering said.

Mr. Wilkins was so drunk that he could scarcely get up. The big man was kicking him in the face when he was down. I couldn't wait. I know how to drive, so I drove on to Cliffmere in Mr. Wilkins' car."

"What was so important at Cliffmere, Miss Sissons, your real name is Miss Mary Sissons, isn't it?"

Mrs. Mary Sissons. My husband was dying at Overlook. They telephoned me."

Overlook? That is a sanitarium for—er mentally incapacitated veterans, isn't it?"

Yes. My husband had been there since the war. He never got his mind back after he was shattered with bullets and gassed. He died at two o'clock this morning.

Exciting Day

"Oh," said the Judge. "I—you never told us you were married, very sad—we shall investigate your story—but meanwhile we want your story about what you saw there at the Half-Way House."

Mary Sissons stood up.

Little red spots burned in her cheeks.

"I know that my poor husband is better off now. He had never been sane since the war—and while I am crushed in a way, I believe that you are right. You wish to get to the bottom of this. When I drove away the big red-headed man was kicking Mr. Wilkins, who was half his size and evidently almost helpless from drink. I don't know whether Mr. Wilkins finally killed the big brute as he should have done or whether you or someone else killed him."

"Me! Me!" How dare you say that?" the Judge bellowed.

"Because," said Mary Sissons, "when I left the car and went on the porch to look for Mr. Wilkins, I looked through a window and saw you in a corner on a sofa. Mrs. Palmer was in your lap. Both of you were having drinks and there was a chair fixed with its back under the doorknob as if you were taking precautions against surprise!"

Tom Deering jumped up.

"Shall I call Clyde Peters, keeper of the Half-Way House, to tell his story, Judge?" he asked.

Judge Fessenden choked and avoided his wife's glare.

"Hearing postponed," he managed to say.

That was certainly an exciting day in Plainville. Before night Judge Fessenden had been killed by "accidentally" driving his car over a cliff and Mrs. Judge Fessenden went crazy and shot her "best friend," Mrs. Palmer.

Amen Corner Raid Opens Interesting Prospect

Notwithstanding that only a few barrels of beer were seized, the raid made by federal prohibition agents on the Amen Corner's picnic may perhaps be regarded as the most important that has been conducted in Pittsburgh since the Volstead Act went into effect. It is important as an almost, if not altogether, unparalleled instance of interference with a drinking party attended by men of the power and standing of those at the raided outing.

The picnic was under the auspices of persons high in public office, or possessed of wealth and influence, although attendance was by no means limited to club members. Nearly everybody in town who is prominent in politics was there. The fact that Deputy Prohibition Administrator Harold D. Wilson, now in charge here, did not let this deter him from interfering with the festivities suggests a determination to enforce the law impartially.

The prospect has interesting possibilities.

Pittsburgh has never before had impartial enforcement of prohibition. There have been many other "wet" picnics in recent years, attended by prominent politicians, and it was common knowledge, well in advance of the affairs, that they were to be wet. The junket down the river last year, in connection with the celebration of the completion of the nine-foot stage in the Ohio, was a conspicuous example. Yet these outings were not molested.

There was, of course, no great degree of moral turpitude involved in the drinking of 3.78 beer by the Amen Corner picnickers. But they will hardly deny themselves that justice and democracy demand that the law be enforced, if at all, equally against all offenders. If any favoritism is to be shown, it should not be to violators who have taken a specific oath to uphold the laws and Constitution. Officeholders, of whom many were present at the Amen Corner picnic, have taken such an oath, but some apparently do not think it requires them to uphold the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead and Snyder laws.

Probably it was because he was aware of this feeling that Gifford Pinchot, while governor, compelled appointees, after they had sworn to uphold the Constitution, to make another promise to obey the prohibition laws. If there was any justification whatever for this requirement, it was in the conduct of such officeholders as those who connived at, if they did not openly participate in, the violation of the Volstead and Snyder laws at the Amen Corner picnic.

No matter how ridiculous, or impossible of enforcement, our present prohibition laws may seem to be, fair-minded citizens will see as much justice in the Amen Corner picnic raid as in smashing up a humble speakeasy.

Delinquent Water Users Cannot Justly Complain

In fulfillment of his threat City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley has begun to shut off the water of persons delinquent in payment of water rentals. Those who are thus deprived of water have no right to complaint; it is a case of having only themselves to blame.

There is no reason why a municipality should be less businesslike in business dealings than a private corporation would be. A private corporation in the business of selling water would not let its customers go on for years without paying for the service.

Mr. Schooley gave fair warning to delinquents, and brought thousands to his office with tardy rentals. Then he added a five-day period of grace, which expired yesterday. No fair-minded person could ask for more.

Failure of the delinquents to pay their bills has added to the burden of other citizens who do pay and who have been compelled, by reason of the delinquents' remissness, to meet the whole expense of the municipal water service.

Why the Hurry?

Treaty Negotiators Fear Exposure of Administration's Secret Aims.

In pressing for the immediate ratification of the London naval treaty, isn't the administration at Washington putting the cart of naval defense before the horse of national policy?

Isn't it attempting so to weaken the American Navy as to compel radical changes in American policy?

Our highest naval authorities object to this treaty because the Navy it authorizes for the United States would be UNABLE TO DEFEND the Philippine Islands, UNABLE TO MAINTAIN the policy of "the open door" in the Far East, UNABLE TO PROTECT its commerce as a neutral in the event of another European war.

Nor have the negotiators of this treaty yet been able to refute the arguments against it brought by our highest naval authorities. What the negotiators have attempted to do is to discredit our naval authorities because they have told the American people the truth about this treaty.

But Frank H. Simonds, in a comprehensive analysis of the treaty, points out that our naval authorities have only done their duty in demonstrating that the Navy authorized by this treaty "IS NOT ADEQUATE TO SUSTAIN THE NATIONAL POLICY." They do not pretend to say what the policy shall be, but only what the defense of that policy requires.

And our highest naval authorities have made against the treaty a case that its negotiators are unable to answer because they flinch from telling the American people ABOUT THOSE CHANGES IN FOREIGN POLICY WHICH ARE TO BE URGED ONCE THE TREATY IS RATIFIED.

If the negotiators of this treaty could be compelled to confess now to those changes in foreign policy which they had in mind when they negotiated this treaty, it could never be ratified.

That is why the treaty was negotiated under false pretenses.

That is why it was drafted IN SECRET.

That is why both the Committee on Foreign Relations and the United States Senate have been denied all the correspondence relating to the treaty.

That is why its supporters are trying to jam the treaty through at an extra session of the Senate BEFORE the secret aims of the administration which negotiated it can be EXPOSED AND EXPOUNDED TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

If the United States Senate is fatuous enough to ratify this treaty blindfolded, its eyes will soon be opened, but, all too late, to those radical changes in American policy which the negotiators of this treaty hope to promote by hamstringing the American Navy.

Quick Team Work Will Stop Him

By Hal Coffman

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Cat-Eye Annie

We must gaze with our best bated breath at the Olympian outbursts of the lady known to the collectors of plain and fancy thumbprints as Cat-Eye Annie.

"Bugs" Baer

Cat-Eye Annie is a home girl whose housekeeping technique includes ironing, washing and the sawing of three-inch bars. Four times, as the village clock ticks, Annie has scrammed her way out a disciplinary bungalow in Auburn, which is New York state's summer home for those who spoil other people's winters.

We know not what gets Annie into Auburn nor what she is doing there. But we do know that her fingers never wander idly over the noisy keys or the oiled locks.

Where the man in the scarlet cap might gaze wistfully upon the inverted bowl that prisoners call the sky, that's all Greek to Annie.

We imagine that McGuffey's first reader would be a parachute jump to Cat-Eye and that she would turn an outside loop on twice two is what.

She has no time for mere inverted bowls. When she starts to lamm she not only inverts the bowl but scatters the whole dinner set including the soup tureen.

Four times she has chiseled her detour out of a modern cell block. And four times they have gathered her in and returned her to the obligatory sun parlor.

All her escapes have been at night when the pulse of justice beats dim and low. But we don't think that they would snare Cat-Eye if she wore smoked glasses in the dark.

She proclaims that she will continue her hoosegow breaks until she succeeds in voting absent during the next Congress. Cat-Eye's motto is every man for herself.

Whether laws be right or wrong is a mere preamble of minor details to Cat-Eye Annie. All that she knows when she hears a bird singing on the outside is to make it a duet. So she goes away from there without even leaving a third-class mailing address.

They usually harvest Annie the same day and bring her back. So she leaves again without waiting to get a permit to parade. Once again they put the clutching law on Cat-Eye and again she concentrates on exits and takes an ankle excursion through the works.

They chain her to an iron gate. The next day Annie is out selling the gate to a dealer in old junk. They escort her indoors and she prefers freckles.

Like the general public, we admire anybody who persists in surmounting the terrific obstacles and hurdles in the path to freedom. Cat-Eye may be a bad citizen but she doesn't waste time in futile meows. She takes her medicine without looking at the label.

PARACELSUS

By Archibald Henderson

The world has grown accustomed to think of Paracelsus as a bombastic, superficial alchemist who spent much of his time in a fruitless search for the elixir of life. Certainly his writings tend to confirm such a view. The phraseology of his books is wordy and cryptic; the effort is evident to mystify and astound the reader. Strange words and symbols were employed, not only to enhance his reputation for learning among the vulgar, but also to conceal his knowledge from his competitors.

He has long been cited as a colossal fraud, a monumental quack. Certainly, he was no little of an impostor, for while pretending publicly to scorn the search for the elixir of life and the secret of the transmutation of metals, he was privately engaged, however fruitlessly, in both those enterprises. Certainly he was a vulgar braggart and an insolent assailant of the established practice of medicine.

Granting all these things, Paracelsus yet remains an extraordinary and memorable figure in the history of chemistry. Like Bacon, he trumpeted forth in no uncertain terms the necessity for studying nature at first hand, holding suspect much of the superstitious and dangerous medical practice of the day.

"I admonish you," he declared, "not to reject the method of experiment, but, according as your power permits, to follow it out without prejudice. For every experiment is like a weapon which must be used according to its peculiar power—as a spear to thrust, a club to strike; so also is it with experiments." Under his hands alchemy began to make the transformation into chemistry.

Paracelsus took this name, as a defiant assertion that he was the equal of Celsus, the great physician of Roman times. Born in 1491, contemporaneous with Columbus' discovery of America, Paracelsus was himself to make discoveries of importance in the art of healing and to inaugurate a revolution against the barbaric and fantastic medical practices of his age. He was the son of a physician, a Swiss, one William Bombastus von Hohenheim, and of a hospital nurse. He came naturally by the profession of medicine, and at the age of 16 he entered the University of Basel. Disgusted by the rigid routine, he left the university and studied alchemy under the famous Trithemius.

After leaving Trithemius he visited the mines of the Tyrol, threw himself into indiscriminate study of rocks, minerals, instruments for extracting ore, and particularly diseases peculiar to miners. Then he set forth upon a long pilgrimage in search of knowledge, matriculating and studying in every famous university of Europe. In Paris he came in contact with the famous Pare, afterward recognized as the father of modern surgery.

He visited Spain, Portugal, England, France and the Netherlands; and his wanderlust carried him as far East as Constantinople, then the seat of a world-famous medical practice. It is said that he visited Egypt and Tartary, and accompanied the son of the Grand Khan in search of the tincture of life possessed by a Greek alchemist.

After many wanderings, long and far, he returned to Basel in 1526, where he became the town physician. Soon he was the fashion in Basel, and was invited to lecture at the university. His lectures created a colossal scandal, for he made a rude and violent assault on the treasured beliefs and traditional practices of the medical profession. He caused a big bonfire to be built, and flung into it the works of the great physicians Avecinna, Galen and Rhazes. The excitement was intense, and hostility became so pronounced that he was driven into a long exile. For years he wandered from place to place, practicing in poverty his profession, as quack doctor, alchemist, and true healer by means of drugs. Although he held many fantastic ideas, then prevalent, he had the true love of research and belief in it as the true fount of knowledge.

Paracelsus made important discoveries, notably of laudanum and ether; and demonstrated the value of salt, sulphur and mercury in the treatment of disease. But his great service was in fighting to free medicine from the dead hand of tradition, superstition and quackery.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Does life hurt you? Does its confusion bewilder you—does its cruelty dishearten you? Do you somehow feel an outsider to it all—homeless, even though you live in the house you have chosen with the friends you love? Then you ARE homeless, for if your spirit is restless, if your spirit is not at home, it matters little how comfortable your body may be in its earthly address.

Yet your spirit may find a home, even in the midst of this confusion that you hate.

Once life hurt another man as it is now hurting you. He was a gentle soul, a teacher named Sidney Lanier. He was very poor and he was slowly dying of tuberculosis. Constantly he was tortured by physical pain and the thought of how little he could do for those he loved. To comfort himself he made poetry. And, toward the end of his life he wrote a poem which must sustain every buffeted soul who reads it.

He had gone into the South to a place where the marshes stretched, vast and silent, to the sea. More than ever, life was nagging at him, shrilling its terror into his ear. Perhaps you can guess how terribly his racked spirit longed for peace—for the peace which is like a home. And there, in the quet marshes of Glynn, he seemed to find that home. For there was something about those marshes, a brooding presence, that was like a friend whom he had lost and found again . . . like a strong, quiet friend in whom his soul could rest.

So in that blessed rest which came before his death, Sidney Lanier wrote a poem called "The Marshes of Glynn," of which this is one verse.

"As the marsh-hen secretly builds on the watery sod,
Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God;
I will fly in the greatness of God as the marsh-hen flies
In the freedom that fills all the space 'twixt the marsh and the skies;
By so many roots as the marsh-grass sends in the sod
I will heartily lay me a-hold on the greatness of God;
Oh, like to the greatness of God is the greatness within
The range of the marshes, the liberal marshes of Glynn."

Are you weary and troubled? Homesick for a peace you lost long, long ago? Then reach out and find your home.

Reach out beyond the noise and confusion that surround you—

Beyond life's racket and worry and pain—

Out, out, until the little noises of the world fade away and presently your spirit comes into that vast Silence that broods above our small, distracted lives.

That vast and living Presence which stretches out and out into the everlasting mysteries, as the marshes of Glynn stretched out and out to the sea.

Then rest within that silence—and build you a nest "on the greatness of God."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Music

Always there was music
On this joyous sphere,
Long before man's lyrics
Sounded sweet and clear.

Always there was singing
Surf upon the shore,
Harpist winds through pine trees
Let their brave notes soar.

Earth was never quiet;
From primeval dawn
Lilting, liquid measures
Have gone singing on.

Song was here to welcome
Man when first he stood
By the calling water,
In the whispering wood.

Always there was music
Since the world began,
And its echoes linger
In the heart of man.

Text For Today

Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.—Ducteronomy, viii: 11.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Small bits of a chick embryo can be cut off and grafted onto the embryonic membranes of another egg, which is then sealed up aseptically. The grafts are nourished by the blood vessels of the membrane, but are not in contact with the host-embryo.

And yet in these surroundings they continue their differentiation as if at home; tiny limb bud grows into well proportioned limb and eye rudiment becomes eye—an eye attached to nothing! The chick's embryonic kidney normally degenerates before hatching and is replaced by the definite kidney, which develops farther back in the body.

H. G. Wells

The rudiment of the embryonic kidney grafted onto another egg not only differentiates to form characteristic tubules, but degenerates after the correct lapse of time. It is like a chemical clockwork which, being set, grinds out its result and can do no other.

Even if organ rudiments (like the early optic cup) are cultivated in tissue culture, they will still achieve their characteristic differentiation within their glass prison as if in the body. The development of such grafted and tissue-cultured rudiments, however, is often not typical as regards their precise shape, for this depends on purely mechanical, not on chemical considerations.

But the chemical differentiation runs on unaffected, so that, in spite of mechanical distortions, all the characteristic kinds of tissue are produced.

It is often asserted by vitalists that the capacity for regulation—the adaptive adjustment of parts to whole—is a peculiar and universal character of life. Vertebrate development is proof to the contrary. We all of us pass through a stage in which we are little more than a chemical mosaic.

During this stage our separate parts are not bound together by any unifying principle, for if one is removed it is not replaced; if one is isolated it can still pursue its differentiation; if the pieces of the mosaic are rearranged each still continues its predestined development.

The arrangement of the pieces is an outcome of what happened in the stage before; it is without influence on the further differentiation.

But for the full intricacy of the chemical mosaic to come into being time is needed. There are phases in specialization. Take the vertebrate limb.

There comes a moment when a definite region of cells, the fore-limb area, has its fate fixed as future fore-limb. Cut it out and graft it elsewhere and it still will grow into fore-limbs. But all that is fixed is that it must turn into a limb; the different parts of the limb are not yet rigidly predetermined within it, any more than the different systems of the embryo were rigidly predetermined in the egg.

As with the egg, if it is cut in half each can give rise to a whole arm; and two limb-areas properly joined together will coalesce and give but a single limb. From the first movement of its existence its fore-and-aft axis is determined (determined by the existing axis of the body, as the egg's axis was determined by the conditions in its mother's ovary); if you graft it elsewhere its thumb will grow out of what was originally its front side, just as if it had been left in place.

And if you wait a little longer its other main axis will have been fixed, also, and the position of its palm and upper surface irrevocably determined, too.

But later, when the fat limb-area has grown out into a little conical bud, the separate main parts of the future limb become also determined. The specialization has gone on another step.

Then, though the bud looks uniform throughout, the tip of it, if grafted elsewhere, will give only a hand and wrist, the base only an upper arm; and still later the details within each main part are fixed; within the tip-region, for instance, one group of cells, which could up till then have been turned into wrist or palm or finger, can now become nothing else than a particular predestined finger-joint.

Thus the acquisition of complexity, that greatest marvel of development, is bound up with a narrowing-down of the possibilities open to each region. The same group of cells which, when the limb-bud is well-grown, can do nothing but turn into a finger-tip, a little earlier could have turned into palm or wrist, but not into upper arm.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

BRUSSELS.—We left Paris in one of those slashing cat-and-dog rains staged only in France and Tahiti. Despite the earliness of the hour, all the boy and girl employes of the hotel were lined up in the hall. And they can take the look I gave them and carve something pretty out of it in nice cold marble.

At 8 a. m. we made our exit through the Porte de la Villette in the direction of the Belgian frontier. The driver-owner of my hired motor car is a lean young Russian named Raymond. During an interlude of fast driving he turned in his seat to inquire: "Do you happen to be O. O. McIntyre, the writer?"

I fairly beamed a grateful affirmative, and if Will Hogg, who is in his own unrented car ahead, did not put him up to it—and I almost know he did—Raymond and I are going to be real buddies. Rural France is always delightful. Poppy fields were a bright wet wash red and cyclists were flashing by holding opened umbrellas.

Every farmer in France has a bicycle instead of an auto. Here and there the pond-like Aisne touched our path and coiled ribbon-like away again. Drenched blue-bloused peasants bogged through the fields in sabots. A sudden curve at Ambley revealed four acres bristling with white crosses, a huge flag honoring heroic soldier dead.

The first stop was at Soissons for a bite at the Hotel de la Croix d'Or, and the fare was largely beans and pate de foi gras, for which the section is named. Soissons is as famous for its beans in Europe as Boston in America. And, of course, it filled many thick-eight-column headlines during the war.

Soissons still shows the scars of its generous shelling, and almost every other man on the quiet streets is minus a leg, an arm or an eye. One of its finest cathedrals is still being patched. My French received its customary shabby treatment at lunch. Ordering "Soissons Beurre," they brought me a bicarbonate of soda.

What is more I downed it, although I hate the stuff, but a lot of villagers were taking in my funny American get-up, and I wanted to appear every inch the traveled worldling. It was my first lunch in many years, and I celebrated it by making way with a hatful of pickled shrimps, whiskers, beady eyes and all.

* * *

We crossed the Belgian frontier at Bettiones. The custom officials, flossed up like drum majors, seemed more interested in watching the contestants of a countryside motorcycle race flash by than examining our passports. Come to think of it, I believe I would rather look at a motorcycle race than most passport pictures myself.

* * *

My first impression of rural Belgium was of shutters. I came from a shutter village and like them. On each building were shutters of varied hues—pink, green, red, yellow, brown and white. The next impression was of billboards, being the sort of traveler who always misses the scenery when there are billboards to read. Each house had a goat roped to a stick in the yard. I left my goat happily in France. They are welcome to it.

There was a great to-do in Brussels upon our arrival. Everywhere the national colors were flying, bands playing, and from thousands of throats came the cry of "Vive la Belge!" I misinterpreted the cry at first, and was very embarrassed. I thought Brussells had turned out to pay respects to the result of my luncheon time shot of bicarbonate of soda. But it subsequently developed all Belgium was honoring the centennial of its independence.

I wonder if everybody entering Brussels at some time or other does not think of Edith Cavell, the martyred English nurse?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It is a cruel sort of sport to make fun of the small town person who comes to work in your department.

It is hard enough to become accustomed to a new environment and to learn the manner of work in a new place.

Then there is the friendless feeling of homesickness to contend with.

If you have never been homesick you can't appreciate what it means.

In the small place back home all were well known faces, but in the city it is bewildering to confront only strangers.

There is the forlorn bleakness of going to sleep in a strange room.

No one to talk to, no place to go, none who would care to be sociable.

All this would not be so hard to bear if conditions in the place of employment during the day meant association with kind, considerate and helpful folk.

It is such a little thing to do to be kind.

To be sympathetically human to the small town employe who has come into your office or shop means much to the stranger and shows the true character of the personnel of a business.

You will find you will get much pleasure out of anything you do which brings joy to another. Try it.
